COLONEL ROBERT ANDERSON EN ROUTE FOR LOUISVILLE

Speech of Gen. Will A. Stokes.

ENTHUSIASTIC RECEPTION.

AND REPLY OF

Colonel Anderson.

by a dispatch from Philadelphia, received by the Mayor, that the "hero of Sumter," Major (now Colonel) Robert Anderson would arrive ere by Pennsylvania Railroad at 12:50 P. M., and go on through to Cincinnati by the next train Accordingly the Mayor designated a committee, consisting of Thos. M. Marshall, P. C. Shannon, R. B. Carnahan, Col. M'Lane, Jno. W. Riddell, Jas. P. Barr and Thomas J. Greensburg and escort him to the city. Some substitutions were made and the committee left by the afternoon train to perform the duty

Arrived at Greensburg, they awaited the arrival of the train from Philadelphia, in which was the Directors' car of the road, which had been assigned for the use of the gallant Colonel. The train was delayed for five minutes at when Gen. Will. A. Stokes addressed the Colonel in the following eloquent

Ottors: Amerison—In performing the agreeable duty or introducing to you this committee of gentlemen appointed to escort you to Pittsburgh, my mind reverts to the modesty of true ment with which you have everywhere declared that you had but done your daty, relying upon God for support. Bit, it is true that you ware left at Sumter in a condition very fit to turn your heart to Heaven for the succor which man demed your lit is true that you did your duty to your country. But in all ages and nations, the sublime piety which inspires a pure soul to the performance of heroic duty, looking only to the sternal heresiter for reward, has moved all a pure soul to the performance of heroic duty, looking only to the eternal hereafter for reward, has moved all men to reverent homage. You have added another to the glorious roll of those who were not born to die-destined to live to teach all future ages the heauty of hotiness—to excite hope in the despairing, and infuse courage into the despondent. These are your titles to immurtality, and in such a presence I feel it would be presumptious to say mere. Permit me, therefore to introduce the gentlemen to the Committee.

To this Col. Anderson made no formal reply, only thanking Mr. Stokes and all present for the compliment paid him. hero, and the train proceeded, heartily cheered by the people of Westmoreland as it moved off. Col. Anderson was accompanied by Terrell of the kentucky volunteers, The train arrived at the Pennsylvania Rail-

When the train stopped, Mayor Wilson en

Our distinguished visitor as follows:

On bashif of my fellow-citisens 1 extend to you a cordist welcome to the city of Pittsburgh. It is not necessary that I should, on this occasion, refer to those hereig deeds of valor so fresh in the memory of your countryinen. History will doubtless do a mple justice to you and the little band that so nobly withstood the siege of Sumter. Allow me to say, however, and I do it with pride and pleasure, that so long as the American people can point to men of your stamp and character they need not, may they will not despair of the republic. It would have astorded my follow-citizens great pleasure to have seen you to-morrow; but, sir, we how with submission to the call of our country, which precludes the possibility of your remaining longer. Agam I bid you welcome to Pittsburgh and God speedin your further progress in the cause of the Union.

or and committee, assisted by Mr. Bradley, of the P., Ft. W. and C. Railroad, to the train ting on the other side, where he met

You must not expect a speech from a soldier. I thank you sincerely for this most enthusiastic reception. I love it because it is an indication of the devotion you feel for the country—not the man, whom you should go beyond. I congratulate you that so far an inicial has been shed. Let us pray that these troubles may be ended without any being spil. Once more I thank you for this ovation. Good night.

The train now moved off, the band playing a national air, and the people cheering and shouting. The crowd dispersed and retired, attained their object, that of seeing and hear-ing Col. Anderson.

CAVALRY GRAPNEL - This is a newly invented weapon of warfare, and is designed to tender cavalry vastly superior to infantry. It is an admitted fact, in the science of war, that infantry formed into a square, or in mass, and standing firm and unbroken, can defeat an equal number of cavalry, each being armed with the ordinary weapons. This fact has been fully demonstrated upon many a well-Waterloo, where the French cavalry repeat-

WAR MADE EASY -Steam vs. Gunpowder -The Milwaukie Wisconsin has been shown a new invention by Draper Stone, of that city, which it says is likely to prove a monster en gine of destruction. Mr. Stone is a skillful and scientific artisan and inventor. He invented the splendid sleeping cars on the La-Crosse Road, and also got up a hydraulic in-vention of some note. He proposes to lay a plan of his machine before the Chamber of Commerce of Milwaukie, and solicit aid in perfecting one on a large scale.

For throwing a musket ball, the cylinder would be about ten feet in length: ut the machine can be made to throw a cannon ball the same as any other. It can be made to throw a cannon ball of five pounds weight a distance of five miles. It would row a musket ball two miles, and kill a man
