THE ACT RELATING TO BROKERS AND PRIVATE BANKERS.

The Philadelphia Press says that the "outrage upon business" passed by the Legislature of Pennsylvania last winter, in the shape of a law relative to brokers and private bankers, which Governor Curtin himself pronounced infamous, but which became a law in consequence of his not being returned, it will be his objections within three days after the commencement of the session, on April 30, 1861, begins to receive the attention of members of the Stock Board in this city.

The law requires every stock broker, bill broker, exchange broker, real estate broker and private banker, in the Commonwealth, to make return under oath to the Auditor General, of the full amount of his receipts from commissions, discounts, abatements, allowances and other profits arising from his business during the year ending with the thirtieth day of November preceding the date of such annual return, and shall forthwith pay into the State Treasury three per centum upon the aggregate amount of such return for each return for the year of the Commonwealth.

It also requires these parties to make a return to the Auditor General in writing under oath, within three months after the passage of this act, setting forth the names of the persons employed, if an individual, or if a partnership, the names of all the individuals composing the same, and the name of the firm, the location or place where such business is transacted, and the amount of capital invested therein, if any.

THE DEATH OF MR. DOUGLAS—THE ACTION OF THE COMMITTEE OF PUBLIC SAFETY.

The death of Judge Douglas has cast a nation into mourning. The people, without regard to station or opinion are departed to honor to the memory of the exalted statesman. To-day his funeral will take place at Chicago, and throughout the country the sympathy of a great people will partake in those funeral obsequies.

The news of his death was received at a time when the Committee of Public Safety were in session and at their request the venerable William Wilkins was requested to prepare a suitable expression in regard to this sad event on behalf of the Committee. He has done so, and it is a tribute worthy of the patriotism of the distinguished gentleman who wrote it.

It will not be presented before the Committee until their meeting on Saturday, but as a memento of the day of Mr. Douglas' burial we lay it before our readers.
