THE CELEBRATION OF THE FOURTH.

BRAND MILITARY DISPLAY

The "Fourth" was a beautiful day and everything was propitious for such a celewere swakened by the booming of artillery.
The "Harper Zouaves" fired a national salute from Cliff street and the Fort Pitt Artillery another, while a miniature cannon on top of the Neptune engine, hauled about by the members and the discharge of thousands of small arms in every part of the city kept reverberating through the streets, arousing the Home Guards in ample time to prepare for the great parade.

As early as six o'clock the sound of fife and drum was heard in the streets and companies began to form on the streets designated. The process of getting regiments together was slow and tedious and, al-Allegheny Commons at eight o'clock, it was not until after nine o'clock that all the brigades were formed and ready to march and it was fully half past nine before the three brigades had assembled on the parade ground. Another hour was occupied in forming the immense mass into line, which was done in the following order:

A Patriotic Letter. Some days since we noticed the fact that Gen. Robert Orr, of Kittanning, had made THIS NEW AND DELIGHTFUL REa liberal donation of money to the Arm. strong Rifles. Gen. Orr was a soldier in the war of 1812 and the following extract of the letter accompaning the money, which we publish by request of an old sub scriber, will show that the spirit which then animated Gen. Orratill lives and manifests itself in deeds as well as in words: KITTANNING, June 18, 1861.

* * You are well aware, my dear sir, that age has unfitted me for the active duty of life, especially the soldier's life; but OVER 3,000 MEN IN THE RANKS. The "Fourth" was a beautiful day and arything was propitious for such a celeation as had never before been witnessed the maintenance of our Constitution and in this city. In early life it was my privilege to do some little for my country. I then learned the many privations and trials through which the soldier is called to pass when led on by patriotism and duty to exchange home and friends, and the endearments and comforts of social life, for the privations of the tented field. I esteem it, therefore, a very high privilege to contribute to his comfort and relieve his necessities. You will pardon me for saying that I had hoped that that flag-the pride of my youth and the protection of my maturer years—would have waved untarnished over though the order was to rendezvous on the my grave, and yielded its safe protection to my children after me; but, now, alag! its sworn defenders are arrayed against it. What excuse can these rebels have for their vile perjuries, breaches of faith and indignities to that flag whose beautiful folds were wont to float in the breezes, the emblem of their own safety and of hope to

I am, very respectfully, yours ROBERT ORB. THE NEW VIGILANT STRAMER .- This elegant and efficient fire apparatus, having been put in perfect working order, was tried on Thursday morning, at the foot of Market street, drawing her supply of water from the Lowry plug on the wharf. The result was highly satisfactory. Steam was raised and the engine playing in 4 minutes and 40 seconds from the lighting of the fire. The maximum pressure of steam routes, rivers, mountains and small towns, are during the trial was 120 pounds. A stream was thrown from the hose, without pipe, 71 feet: from a nozzle 1 inches in diamoter, 167 feet; from a 11 inch nozzle 228 postage stamps, ry feet; from a 11 inch nozzle 266 feet. __ jel8 Two streams were thrown from 1 inch and inch nozzles, at the same time, 200 and STOP IN AT 205 feet respectively. The greatest distance thrown, 266 feet, exceeds that of the Good Will, at the State Fair in Cincinnati, last fall, 2 feet; and is proof conclusive of the capacity of the new engine.
