CITY MATTERS.

Sad Cases of Drowning. Coroner Bostwick was yesterday called upon to hold two inquests. The first was upon the body of Isabella Hare, a little girl of only nine years, whose parents re side in Æma borough, Shaler township.

On Monday afternoon, with several companions, she went into Pine Creek to bathe and got beyond her depth, when she began to sink, her cries frightening her comrades away. Her lifeless body was found an hour or two afterwards and conveyed to the re-on have street. He went into the Monon-gahela river "dive" for old iron among the wrecks of the boats destroyed by fire at the wharf, in company with his brother, who soon missed him, and on making search found him with his head downward and his feet caught in some timbers, which prevented him from rising to the surface. were returned in both cases.
