It is idle to speculate as to the future, until the clouds of war, which now hang so heavily over the land, are dissipated; but still, the current of events indicate that from this time henceforth, whether we have peace or war, the expences of the government must be paid from means raised in part by direct taxation. It is scarcely probable that the time will ever come again ed from duties on imports, and future Secretaries of the Treasury will have to ORNAMENTAL PAINTER, explore this new field of direct taxation

We may safely venture to affirm that this balloon and its auxilliaries will be the most complete for the purpose intended that has ever been constructed, and under the exprienced mangement of Prof. Wise will do good service to the army. He will report at headquarters as soon as his apparatus can possibly be completed.

Just before his death Douglas remarked that "this present secession movement was the result of a great conspiracy, formed more than a year ago.
