afternoon.) an effort will be made to show that the proposed levy will not be needed; that the tax already levied and now partly collected will be amply sufficient, after deto enable you and the judges to furnish all the relief asked by the Committee; and I respectfully ask your aid, at the meeting of the Committee to morrow, in presenting the facts to those urging the levy. If I correctly understand the law, you can grant the required relief out of any money now in the treasury, or already levied and to come in; and this relief is in no manner contingent on the levy of the special tax, which another section of the act authorizes in cases—as I suppose—only where enough has not already been levied If I am mistaken, either as to the provision of the act, or as to the sufficiency of the amount levied, of course my objection to a further levy must fall-for no one will hesitate about supplying the families of those who fight our battles. But if there is already a sufficient amount levied, and if the law permits you to grant the neces sary relief out of this amount, I trust that both you and the Committee of Public Safety will concur with me in the opinion that the present is no time for increasing the taxes of our people, even for the patriotic purpose referred to, if that purpose can be as well accomplished without additional taxation

I am informed that but very few members of the Committee usually attend its Saturday meetings; but we, may on a subject involving a tax of fifty thousand dolit is not needed -or if the general Committee will not act, possibly its Executive Committee, through whom most of the business is done, may give some attention to the matter.

Executive Committee are secret, I am not cartain that we can be heard in it. It can do no harm, however, to try. Your statement of our county finances published last fall, demonstrates, I think, that a further levy is not necessary. May I expect your co-operation in an attempt to satisfy either the public or private Committee of Safety, that such is the Yours, respectfully.

MESSES. EDITORS:—In answer to the above would say that, according to our that a levy of seven mills on the dollar would pay off the debts and meet the ordinary expenses of the county. But owing to the number of men that have left the county, and the hardness of the times, we believe it will take all that will be collected of the eight mill tax levied this year to meet the demands that will be made on the Treasury for the ordinary expenses and debts of the county. Yet if it could be clearly shown that a sufficient portion of the present levy would be left for the purpose aforesaid, after paying the debts and ordinary expenses of the county, none would be more willing than we to comply

Au Unexpected Meeting -- A Father fluds a Son supposed to have been shot, after Nine Years' Absence. A most unexpected meeting of a father with his son, who was supposed to have been dead several years, occurred at the railroad depot yesterday morning. Three companies of the United States Cavalry, rom the Western frontier, were waiting for the departure of the train for Pittsburgh. The men were lounging about the depot, improving to the utmost the brief relaxation from duty afforded by their journey Eastward. One of the troopers, passing along the C. & P. side of the buildng, came suddenly upon an old man whose sace seemed familiar. never fail to cure the worst form of Venereal Discances, impurities and Serotulous Affections. Also, all diseases arising from a hereditary taint, which manifests itself in the form of a tetter, psoriasis, and a great many forms of skin diseases, the origins of which the patient is entirely ignorant. To persons so afflicted, Dr. Brown offers hopes of a sure and sneedy recovery.
