Letter from Camp Scott.
CAMP SCOTT, STAFFORD ISLAND, N. Y.,
 July 13, 1863.

Mr. Editor:—Although not personally acquainted with you, yet I am a constant reader of your valuable paper, and therefore feel it my duty to let you hear from me. There is nothing unusual going on in camp at present, excepting the activity displayed in equipping the brigade which is its first filling up. He drew his report upon a soldier named William A. Young, of Washington county, said to be quartered with company D, Nineteenth Regiment, Pennsylvania Reserves, now stationed at Camp Wright, and beat him severely over the head with a club and what else he could lay his hands on. He drew his knife and pitched into them right and left, wounding two of the party—one of them dangerously.

In the mean, Francis Welch, a heater at Shoemaker's rolling-mill, received a cut in the left side, made with a very large knife. The wound was two and a half inches wide, and seven inches deep, extending upward towards the shoulder. The wounded man was attended by Dr. Dunaway and a German physician whose name we did not learn. The medical gentlemen were of opinion that no large artery or vein was severed, and that the wound, although a very dangerous one, was not necessarily fatal. Welch was taken to the Hospital.

A man named Owen Hughes was also cut, but not very seriously. Alderman J. H. Jones gave his prompt attention to the case, and Young was taken in custody and confined to prison to await the result of Welch's wounds.

An information was made against Mrs. Wagoner, at whose house the affray occurred, before Alderman Jones, and she was committed to jail in default of bail for keeping a disorderly and lawless house. Young, who is, we believe, Orderly Sergeant of his company, claims to have used his knife in self defence, but in advance of a legal investigation of the affair no correct opinion of the rights and wrongs of the case can be formed.

CAPT. KENNEDY, of the Duquesne Greys, arrived in the city on Sunday, and will remain for a few days on recruiting duty, by order of Col. Gardner of the 12th. Capt. Kennedy is a true soldier, always prompt at the post of duty and always welcome among his friends.

HENRY A. WISE—There still remains a doubt in the minds of our citizens whether Henry A. Wise is dead or only wounded, but there is a certainty that books never were so low as they are now selling nightly at the Auction House of McClelland, Weaver & Co.

WASHINGTON, July 15.—The Sanitary Commission has just closed its third session in Washington. The meeting was held a month ago. The commission is now thoroughly organized and working effectually, and its agents are busily at work in the principal military encampments. They report the result of their inquiries and labors daily to the headquarters of the commission, at the Treasury building. Several of the commissioners are continuing to travel in the army and near Washington, and a large number of agents are being sent out to the various posts.

PORTSMOUTH, July 14.—Via Baltimore.—I learn from Col. Benedict, at Newport News, that the rebels are still missing—having doubtless been killed or taken prisoners. Fortunate indeed, if the rebels have been taken prisoners, as they would be a valuable addition to our ranks. Colonel Benedict was yesterday at Old Point, and was accompanied by General Waller, who has been ordered to the city by the late Governor.

NEW YORK, July 15.—The steamship Cahawa, from Southampton, arrived here yesterday morning. The ship was captained by Mr. J. H. Jones, and was loaded with passengers and cargo. She arrived at 10 o'clock and will leave for Liverpool tomorrow morning.

WASHINGTON, July 15.—The House of Representatives has passed a resolution authorizing the President to employ military force to suppress any rebellion against the United States. The resolution is a strong one, and shows the determination of the Government to maintain the Union at all costs.

LOUISVILLE, July 15.—The rebels were routed by Gen. Morris at Springfield, Missouri, on Sunday last. The rebels were completely routed, and a large number of prisoners were taken. The loss of the rebels was estimated at 1,500 men.
