

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE CITY.

PITTSBURGH: SATURDAY MORNING, JULY 20.

THE ADVANCE.

We have devoted a considerable share of our space this morning to a detailed account of the advance of the Federal Army into Virginia. Just now there is no more interesting topic than our war news.

The march to Fairfax Court House, from the description we publish of the spectacle must have been grand and impressive. The spirit of the men was equal to the occasion. The utmost promptness was observed in preparing for the start, and the whole immense column moved forward, with cheers and songs, accompanied by the enlivening music of their bands.

THE RETURNING VOLUNTEERS. It is quite probable that within a few days a large number of the three months volunteers whose term of service is about to expire, will return home at least to visit their friends, in case the immediate necessities of their country do not induce them to extend their stay for a short time, until the rebels have backed entirely out of their reach.

Confiscating Rebel Property. A bill is before Congress to confiscate the property of those who have taken part in the rebellion against the government. Congress has no more right to confiscate the property of a traitor than it has of the loyal citizen.

THE ADVANCE OF THE GRAND ARMY OF THE POTOMAC. The advance of the whole corps d'armes constituting the column under the command of Brigadier General McDowell has thus far proved a triumphant march.

restoration, and those in whom the light of intellect has forever gone out, are treated with the utmost kindness and made as happy as their unfortunate condition will admit.

He is a man about fifty years of age and has been here for eight or ten years. There is no hope of his recovery.

We take from the special telegram to the New York Herald the following graphic account of the advance of our army into Virginia.

teenth and Twenty-seventh regiments of New York volunteers.

The detachment encountered by Col. Hunter's division was erected upon the farm of Mr. Segar, an emigrant to Virginia from New York.

Up to this point, about one mile from the route, the people living upon the roadside were all quietly pursuing their usual avocations.

It was ascertained that the division had reached a neighborhood thickly populated with the most rabid rebels in the county, prominent among whom is one Gen. P. H. R. R.

After it came the Second Rhode Island Cavalry, a section of Barry's battery.

The first brigade brought up the rear in the following order: Griffin's battery, Major Byker's United States Infantry, Major Reynolds' United States Infantry, and the Fourth, Twenty-seventh and Eighth New York volunteers.

In this order the centre of the column left its bivouac, about six miles from Fairfax Court House, at ten o'clock this morning.

The fortification was erected at the foot of a long hill, the top of which was covered with a dense thicket, affording an excellent cover for sharpshooters.
