The War Fever in Baldinsville.

BY ARTEMAS WARD.

As soon as I'd recooperated my physikil system I went over into the village. The peasantry was glad to see me. The schoolmaster sed it was cheerin to see that gigantic intelleck among 'em once more. That's what he called me. I like the schoolmaster, and allers send him tobacker when I'm off on a travelin campane. Besides, he is a very sensible man. Such men must be encouraged.

They don't git news very fast in Baldinsville, as nothing but a plank road runs in there twice a week, and that's very much out of repair. So my nabors wasn't much posted up in regard to the wars. 'Squire Baxter said he'd voted the dimicratic ticket for goin on forty year, and the war was a dam blank republican lie. Jo. Stackpole, who kills hogs for the 'Squire, and has got a powerful muscle into his arms, sed he'd bet $5 he could lick the Crisis in a fair stand-up fight, if he wouldn't draw a knife on him. So it went—sum was for war, and sum was for peace. The schoolmaster, however, sed that the Slave Oligarky must cower at the feet of the North ere a year had flowed by, or pass over his dead corpse. "Esta perpetua!" he added, "And sine qua non also!" sed I, sternly, wishing to make a impression onto the villagers. "Requiescat in pace!" sed the schoolmastor. "Too troo, too troo," I answered, "it's a scanderlus fact!"

The newspapers got along at last chock full of war, and the patriotic fever fairly bust out in Baldinsville. 'Squire Baxter said he didn't believe in Coercion, not one of 'em, and could prove by a file of Eagles of Liberty in his garrit, that it was all a Whig lie, got up to raise the price of whisky and destroy our other liberties. But the old 'Squire got putty riled when he heard how the rebels was cuttin up, and he sed he reckoned he should skour up his old muskit and do a little square fitin for the Old Flag, which had allers bin on the ticket he'd voted, and he was too old to bolt now. The 'Squire is all right at heart, but it takes longer for him to fill his venerable Biler with steam than it used to when he was young and frisky. As I previously informed you, I am Captin of the Baldinsville company. I rizgradsically but majestically from drummer's secretary to my present position. But I found the ranks wasn't full by no means, and commenced for to recroot. Havin notist a gineral desire on the part of young men who are into the Crisis to wear eppylits, I determined to have my company composed excloosively of offissers, everybody to rank as Brigadeer-Ginral. The follering was among the varis questions which I put to recroots:

Do you know a masked battery from a bunk of gingerbread?

Do you know a eppylit from a piece of chalk?

If I trust you with a real gun, how many men of your own company do you speck you can manage to kill durin the war?

Hav you ever heard of Ginral Price of Missouri, and can you avoid similer accidents in case of battle?

Hav you ever had the measles; and, if so, how many?

How air you now?

Show me your tongue, &c., &c. Some of the questions were sarcusstical.

The company filled up rapidly, and last Sunday we went to the meetin house in full uniform. I had a seris time gittin into my military harness, as it was bilt for me many years ago; but I finally got inside of it; tho' it fitted me putty clost. However, once into it, I looked fine—in fact, aw-inspirin. "Do you know me, Mrs. Ward?" sed I, walkin into the kitchin.

"Know you, you old fool? Of course I do."

I saw at once that she did.

I started for the meetin house, and I'm fraid I tried to walk too strate, for I cum very near falling over backwards; and in attemptin to recover myself, my sword got mixed up with my legs and I fell in among a choice collection of young ladies, who was standin near the church door a-seein the sojer boys come up. My cockt hat fell off, and sumhow my coat tails got twisted round my neck. The young ladies put their hankerchers to their mouths and remarked: "Te he," while my ancient female single friend, Sary Peaseley, burst out in a loud larf. She exercised her mouth so vielently that her new false teeth fell out onto the ground.

"Miss Peaseley," sed I, gittin up and dustin myself, "you must be more careful with them store teeth of your'n or you'll hav to gum it agin!"

Methinks I had her.

I'd bin to work hard all the week, and I felt rather snoozy. I'm fraid I did git half asleep, for on hearing the minister ask, "Why was man made to mourn?" I sed, "I giv it up," having a vague idee that it was a conundrum. It was a unfortinit remark for the whole meetin house lookt at me with mingled surprise and indignation. I was about risin to a pint of order, when it suddenly occurd to me where I was, and I kept my seat, blushin like the red, red rose—so to speak.

The next mornin I rose with the lark (N. B.—I don't sleep with the lark, tho'. A goak.)

My little dawter was exceedin bald, accompanyin herself with the hand orgin, and she wisht me linger and hear her sing: "Hark I hear a angel singin, a angel now is onto the wing." "Let him fly, my child!" sed I, a bucklin on my armor, "I must forth to my Biz."
