Colonel Wilcox, of the Michigan Second, and Captain Nugent, of the New York Seventy Ninth, are among the killed.

The panic was so great that the attempt to rally them to a stand at Centreville was entirely in vain. If a firm stand had been made there, our troops could have been reinforced and much disaster prevented. Gen. McDowell was thus foiled in his well arranged plans. It is sufficient that all the provision trains belonging to the United States government were saved. DENTISTRY. - Dr. C. WASHINGTON, July 22. The following s an account of the inauguration of the panic which has operated so disastrously to our troops. It receives unusual interest from the subsequent events. All our military operations went on swimmingly, and Col. Alexander was about erecting a pontoon across Bull-Run, the enemy were. seemingly in retreat, and their batterie being unmasked one after another, when a terrific consternation broke out amongst the teamsters, who had incantiously advanced immediately after the body of the army, and lined the Warrentown road — Their consternation was shared in by numerous civilians who were on the ground. and for a time it seemed as if the whole army was in retreat. Many baggage wagens were emptied of their contents, and the horses galloped across the open fields. Fences were torn down to allow them a more rapid retreat-for a time a perfect panic prevailed, which communicated itself o the vicinity of Centreville, and every available conveyance was seized upon by From 2,500 to 3,000 Killed agitated civilians. The wounded soldiers on the roadside cried for assistance, but the alarm was so great that numbers were passed by. Several similar alarms occurred on previous occasions, when a change of batteries rendered necessary the retirement of the artillery on our part, and it is most probable that the alarm was owing to the same fact. The reserve force at Centreville was brought up and marched in double quick step in the following order: Colonel Einstein's Twenty-Seventh Pennsylvania regiment, with ten guns; the Garibaldi Guards and Blenker's First R fis regiment, with its batteries, followed, at several miles distant, by the De Kalb regi-&c, &c, &c., &c. &c. ment. When our courier left at haif past four o'clock, p. m , it was in the midst of the greatest excitement. Two new batteries were opened by the repels on the left flank and that portion of the division had had its lines broken, and demanded immediate this evening, I hereby desire all citizens pulsed, and commenced a retreat upon reinforcements. The right was in good Washington in good order. Our loss is order. The battery erected on the bill side, additional guns were being mounted. On his arrival at Fairfax Court House our courier was overtaken by goverment messengers, who reported that our army was in full retreat towards Centreville. They were followed by less agitated parties, who stated that the report of the retreat was owing to the fact that the alarm among the teamsters had communicated itself to the regulars, and even in some instances to the regulars, and the lines were thus broken and that a retirement of our force across Bull's Run was rendered necessary.

Col. Hunter passed at the same time, in a vehicle, wounded. Ayres' battery was also reported as lost Crowds of carriages and baggage waggons came rushing down the constitution details and many the fire Z nuaves, are not killed, but badly wounded.

punishment of the rebels now in arms.

Mr. Stevens, not believing such resolutions from either side would do any good or strengthen our hands, objected to the introduction of the resolutions.

Mr. McClernand having propounded s question as to the bill for the increase of the regular army, Mr. Blair responded by saying that the Senate passed a bill adding new regiments, but the House amended it by substituting their own, providing for volunteers instead. The latter bill has gone to the Senate, where both now are.
