SORT for those seeking either health or preasure, is situated one mile from the village of Loretto, and four miles from Croseon station, on the Pennsylvania Central Railroad—from which to Loretto, there is a weil constructed Plank-Road.

The Springs are about 2,600 feet above tide-water, and the air is always bracing and invigorating, the thermometer seldom ranging above 750 in Summer. The head waters of the Busquehana and Clearfield abound in trout, and the mountain ranges are filled with game, affording fine sport to those who are fond of such amusements.

The buildings are admirably constructed with respect to room and ventilation, and the whole fitted up with every appliance that can contribute to the comfort of the guests. The rooms are supplied with running apring water, in marble basins, and hot, and cold Baths on each floor. Bath Houses for laties and gentlemen, withwater supplied from the lake, having Swimming-Cataract and Showers and inxuries that the market affords. The Bar will be tooked with the best Wines. Guests may rely upon getting the purest Wines and Liquors that can be obtained.

St. Louis to be Captured.

It is now stated that JACKSON, as the director of the Contential temporary in its operations in this State, means to strike directly at St. Louis, while making a feint at Cairo and Bird's Point. It is contended that St. Louis once in the possession of JACKSON, with the Arsenal and Barracks taken, will afford a key, not only to the early occupation of the Capital, but to the speedy subjugation of the entire State. It will, also, it is held, open the Mississippi to the mouth of the Ohio, and facilitate communication with the Southern Confederacy, even though the Federal troops be not dislodged from their positions around Cairo. But the great object in the capture of St. Louis, would be to "dictate terms to the United States"

But the great object in the capture of St. Louis, would be to "dictate terms to the United States Government," or divert such a force from the operations in Virginia as would allow JEFF. DAVIS comparative ease at Richmond. This is a grand scheme, and, if carried out, would probably exhibit much strategy. It is, to execute. There is a great deal of however, one thing to plan and another hard fighting before Jackson and his crew ere they reach the suburbs of this city, and then the war would be only just begun. Our word for it, Jackson s not going to try to take St. Louis without an army a vast deal larger than any he at present seems likely to get. The fact is, he is only aiding the Confederates to remove the seat of war as far as possible from their own borders, and has no idea of ever getting back into the Governor's chair. This is based on the hypothesis that he is not stark raving crazy.-[St. Louis Repub-

Looking on this Picture, then on That. Prince Napoleon is a man of close observation, and he has the credit of arriving at correct conclusions. His visit to this continent is not one merely of pleasure. He leaves his royal consort at the nearest hotel after landing. Making a rapid but diligent examination of the public characteristics of New York city, he moves, without official display, direct through Philadelphia, to the seat of Government.—
