He reports that McCulloch was mortally wounded, and died at Springfield the morning after the battle. His body was placed in a tin lined coffin, which was filled with whisky and closely sealed, and sont southward on Tuesday evening, accompanied by his body guard and a few companies of soldiers, &c. He says that Gen. Price was badly wounded, and thinks that he will not be able to take command again soon. The rebels were reinforced on Saturday night after the battle by 9,000 men under McBrido, very many of whom had no arms. It was current among the rebels that 11,000 of their army would make a forced march on Jefferson City and ako it. My informant says that the last charges by the Kaneas and Iowaregiments and dragoons forced the enemy to retreat three miles, where they waited till night in constant expectation of again being at-
