MONDAY MORNISGHIRESEPT. 23. KNITTING BY MACHINERY - On Satura day, Mr. E. Daly, of Allegheny, called at our office and placed in operation one of Aiken's family knitting machines, which, though invented many years ago, has only been brought to perfection recently and is now being manufactured and sold at prices which will bring it within reach of all -We are at a loss to describe the apparatus, so simple is its construction. It consists of a disc of steel with a circular opening three or four, jaches in diameter in the middle under which work, towards the centre, a series of patent latch needles, forming a circle. The yarn, un wound from a bobbin, is caught upon a needle, and a crank at the side turned, which drives out the heads of the needles and the thread catching on the latch in its return, a perfect double loop is formed. A small apparatus on top prevents the dropping of a single stitch, how, ever rapidly the crank may be turned -The ordinary machine is fastened to a table and a weight attached to the knit cyl inder as it comes from the machine, a close, firm fabric, to keep it distended. chine will make 4 200 stitches per minute and turn out a past of strekings an ten perfection, undershirts, drawers, comforts, table covers, head dresses, cravats. caps, purses, suspenders, nubias, scarfe, machine has received a number of medala from various institutes as premiums for his invention. It is perfect, exactly church, Lawrenceville, and we hope and adapted to the use for which it is designed, and must work a complete revolution in the manufacture of stockings, &c.
