

UNION TICKET. FOR FEDERALIST... WILLIAM R. MCCLURE... JOHN A. HARRISON...

The last speech of Stephen A. Douglas... Douglas at Chicago, May 1st, he said these admirable and memorable words:

"Whoever is not prepared to sacrifice party organizations and platforms on the altar of his country does not deserve the support and confidence of honest people."

"Do not give up the Union. Preserve it in the name of God. It is the Revolution—preserve it for its great elements of liberty—preserve it for the faithful and devoted lovers of the Constitution in the rebellious States—those who are persecuted for their support, and are dying in its defence."

THE TICKETS READY. The Union ticket is now ready for distribution, and electors of the several Wards, Boroughs and Townships of the county, are requested to send for a supply to the office of the Post.

FORGIVENESS. A few weeks ago the editor of the Gazette said the Republican Convention should select five or six good Democrats on the ticket, and mentioned as specimens the names of McCook, Hamilton, McCloy, McClintock, Morison, and so others.

DEPARTURE EXTRAORDINARY. Left this city on Thursday, at twelve midnight, on the Pittsburgh & Wheeling fast line, THOMAS F. WILSON, Esq., Secretary of the Republican County Executive Committee.

HARRY MAGRAW AT LARGE. The telegraph announces that Harry Magraw has been returned to the bosom of his family, from the vile tobacco warehouse where he was lately confined.

All the coopers in Charleston have been engaged in making water-tight kegs and barrels to be used at Fort Sumter. They are to be filled with fresh water, so that if communication with Charleston is cut off they will not perish for water until three thousand casks full are exhausted.

TOO MUCH.

The editorial fraternity and office expostulators on the Gazette seem to be working out their salvation in fear and trembling. The public might suppose from that organ that the war was but a trifle compared with the election of a partisan ticket in Allegheny county.

Words to the Sheriffly far exceeded in importance the present war. It may be true that it does, so far as that paper and a few of its followers are concerned, but it is not so considered by the bulk of the people.

It is not so considered by the bulk of the people. Mr. Woods has many personal friends who will vote for him on that account, which is all right and proper. Nobody doubts his fidelity to his country, whilst he has proven his devotion to his party; he is not, therefore, to be opposed on these points.

It is not so considered by the bulk of the people. Mr. Woods has many personal friends who will vote for him on that account, which is all right and proper. Nobody doubts his fidelity to his country, whilst he has proven his devotion to his party; he is not, therefore, to be opposed on these points.

It is not so considered by the bulk of the people. Mr. Woods has many personal friends who will vote for him on that account, which is all right and proper. Nobody doubts his fidelity to his country, whilst he has proven his devotion to his party; he is not, therefore, to be opposed on these points.

It is not so considered by the bulk of the people. Mr. Woods has many personal friends who will vote for him on that account, which is all right and proper. Nobody doubts his fidelity to his country, whilst he has proven his devotion to his party; he is not, therefore, to be opposed on these points.

It is not so considered by the bulk of the people. Mr. Woods has many personal friends who will vote for him on that account, which is all right and proper. Nobody doubts his fidelity to his country, whilst he has proven his devotion to his party; he is not, therefore, to be opposed on these points.

It is not so considered by the bulk of the people. Mr. Woods has many personal friends who will vote for him on that account, which is all right and proper. Nobody doubts his fidelity to his country, whilst he has proven his devotion to his party; he is not, therefore, to be opposed on these points.

It is not so considered by the bulk of the people. Mr. Woods has many personal friends who will vote for him on that account, which is all right and proper. Nobody doubts his fidelity to his country, whilst he has proven his devotion to his party; he is not, therefore, to be opposed on these points.

THE WHOLE TRUTH.

Perhaps the editor of the Gazette had better turn Greeley out of the Republican party, or denounce his course as a dirty Democratic trick. Let us say what the editor of the New York Tribune says in a short story.

The Republican State Committee invited a cooperation of editors of all parties who were in favor of securing the Government in a vigorous prosecution of the War for the Union. The Democratic State Committee rejected the overture with insult.

The Republican State Committee invited a cooperation of editors of all parties who were in favor of securing the Government in a vigorous prosecution of the War for the Union. The Democratic State Committee rejected the overture with insult.

The Republican State Committee invited a cooperation of editors of all parties who were in favor of securing the Government in a vigorous prosecution of the War for the Union. The Democratic State Committee rejected the overture with insult.

The Republican State Committee invited a cooperation of editors of all parties who were in favor of securing the Government in a vigorous prosecution of the War for the Union. The Democratic State Committee rejected the overture with insult.

The Republican State Committee invited a cooperation of editors of all parties who were in favor of securing the Government in a vigorous prosecution of the War for the Union. The Democratic State Committee rejected the overture with insult.

The Republican State Committee invited a cooperation of editors of all parties who were in favor of securing the Government in a vigorous prosecution of the War for the Union. The Democratic State Committee rejected the overture with insult.

The Republican State Committee invited a cooperation of editors of all parties who were in favor of securing the Government in a vigorous prosecution of the War for the Union. The Democratic State Committee rejected the overture with insult.

The Republican State Committee invited a cooperation of editors of all parties who were in favor of securing the Government in a vigorous prosecution of the War for the Union. The Democratic State Committee rejected the overture with insult.

The Destruction of the Privateer Pen-

Extract from a letter from an officer of the U. S. Navy, dated Sept. 20, 1862. On Friday night, four boats from the Colorado, with two boat howitzers, made an excursion to the navy yard, under the command of Lieut. Russell, second officer of the ship, to follow up the former reconnoissance made by Capt. Eddy, and to destroy a privateer schooner lying at the wharf.

The schooner being cut adrift and thoroughly fired up, floated into the stream and down opposite Fort Harrison, where she was captured by the U. S. Navy. The schooner was a Yankee prize, and was carrying a cargo of flour and other provisions.

The schooner being cut adrift and thoroughly fired up, floated into the stream and down opposite Fort Harrison, where she was captured by the U. S. Navy. The schooner was a Yankee prize, and was carrying a cargo of flour and other provisions.

The schooner being cut adrift and thoroughly fired up, floated into the stream and down opposite Fort Harrison, where she was captured by the U. S. Navy. The schooner was a Yankee prize, and was carrying a cargo of flour and other provisions.

The schooner being cut adrift and thoroughly fired up, floated into the stream and down opposite Fort Harrison, where she was captured by the U. S. Navy. The schooner was a Yankee prize, and was carrying a cargo of flour and other provisions.

The schooner being cut adrift and thoroughly fired up, floated into the stream and down opposite Fort Harrison, where she was captured by the U. S. Navy. The schooner was a Yankee prize, and was carrying a cargo of flour and other provisions.

The schooner being cut adrift and thoroughly fired up, floated into the stream and down opposite Fort Harrison, where she was captured by the U. S. Navy. The schooner was a Yankee prize, and was carrying a cargo of flour and other provisions.

The schooner being cut adrift and thoroughly fired up, floated into the stream and down opposite Fort Harrison, where she was captured by the U. S. Navy. The schooner was a Yankee prize, and was carrying a cargo of flour and other provisions.

The schooner being cut adrift and thoroughly fired up, floated into the stream and down opposite Fort Harrison, where she was captured by the U. S. Navy. The schooner was a Yankee prize, and was carrying a cargo of flour and other provisions.

Will There be a Battle on the Potomac?

General McClellan will not fight outside his lines, unless the rebels do one of four things. First, commit some serious military blunder, which he will be bound to take advantage of. Second, weaken their force to send reinforcements to Kentucky or Western Virginia. Third, attempt to close up the navigation of the lower Potomac.

General McClellan will not fight outside his lines, unless the rebels do one of four things. First, commit some serious military blunder, which he will be bound to take advantage of. Second, weaken their force to send reinforcements to Kentucky or Western Virginia. Third, attempt to close up the navigation of the lower Potomac.

General McClellan will not fight outside his lines, unless the rebels do one of four things. First, commit some serious military blunder, which he will be bound to take advantage of. Second, weaken their force to send reinforcements to Kentucky or Western Virginia. Third, attempt to close up the navigation of the lower Potomac.

General McClellan will not fight outside his lines, unless the rebels do one of four things. First, commit some serious military blunder, which he will be bound to take advantage of. Second, weaken their force to send reinforcements to Kentucky or Western Virginia. Third, attempt to close up the navigation of the lower Potomac.

General McClellan will not fight outside his lines, unless the rebels do one of four things. First, commit some serious military blunder, which he will be bound to take advantage of. Second, weaken their force to send reinforcements to Kentucky or Western Virginia. Third, attempt to close up the navigation of the lower Potomac.

General McClellan will not fight outside his lines, unless the rebels do one of four things. First, commit some serious military blunder, which he will be bound to take advantage of. Second, weaken their force to send reinforcements to Kentucky or Western Virginia. Third, attempt to close up the navigation of the lower Potomac.

General McClellan will not fight outside his lines, unless the rebels do one of four things. First, commit some serious military blunder, which he will be bound to take advantage of. Second, weaken their force to send reinforcements to Kentucky or Western Virginia. Third, attempt to close up the navigation of the lower Potomac.

General McClellan will not fight outside his lines, unless the rebels do one of four things. First, commit some serious military blunder, which he will be bound to take advantage of. Second, weaken their force to send reinforcements to Kentucky or Western Virginia. Third, attempt to close up the navigation of the lower Potomac.

General McClellan will not fight outside his lines, unless the rebels do one of four things. First, commit some serious military blunder, which he will be bound to take advantage of. Second, weaken their force to send reinforcements to Kentucky or Western Virginia. Third, attempt to close up the navigation of the lower Potomac.

Items from Dixie.

The Richmond papers of Monday contain the following items of interest: MARYLAND REFUGEES. A party of six or seven refugees from St. Mary's county, Maryland, reached this city by the Frederickburg train on Friday.

The Richmond papers of Monday contain the following items of interest: MARYLAND REFUGEES. A party of six or seven refugees from St. Mary's county, Maryland, reached this city by the Frederickburg train on Friday.

The Richmond papers of Monday contain the following items of interest: MARYLAND REFUGEES. A party of six or seven refugees from St. Mary's county, Maryland, reached this city by the Frederickburg train on Friday.

The Richmond papers of Monday contain the following items of interest: MARYLAND REFUGEES. A party of six or seven refugees from St. Mary's county, Maryland, reached this city by the Frederickburg train on Friday.

The Richmond papers of Monday contain the following items of interest: MARYLAND REFUGEES. A party of six or seven refugees from St. Mary's county, Maryland, reached this city by the Frederickburg train on Friday.

The Richmond papers of Monday contain the following items of interest: MARYLAND REFUGEES. A party of six or seven refugees from St. Mary's county, Maryland, reached this city by the Frederickburg train on Friday.

The Richmond papers of Monday contain the following items of interest: MARYLAND REFUGEES. A party of six or seven refugees from St. Mary's county, Maryland, reached this city by the Frederickburg train on Friday.

The Richmond papers of Monday contain the following items of interest: MARYLAND REFUGEES. A party of six or seven refugees from St. Mary's county, Maryland, reached this city by the Frederickburg train on Friday.

The Richmond papers of Monday contain the following items of interest: MARYLAND REFUGEES. A party of six or seven refugees from St. Mary's county, Maryland, reached this city by the Frederickburg train on Friday.

In Capt. Faulkner's company, of Augusta, Ala., about to start for Richmond, there are...

In Capt. Faulkner's company, of Augusta, Ala., about to start for Richmond, there are... a knife, the blade of which is nineteen inches long, and weighs two pounds and a half.

In Capt. Faulkner's company, of Augusta, Ala., about to start for Richmond, there are... a knife, the blade of which is nineteen inches long, and weighs two pounds and a half.

In Capt. Faulkner's company, of Augusta, Ala., about to start for Richmond, there are... a knife, the blade of which is nineteen inches long, and weighs two pounds and a half.

In Capt. Faulkner's company, of Augusta, Ala., about to start for Richmond, there are... a knife, the blade of which is nineteen inches long, and weighs two pounds and a half.

In Capt. Faulkner's company, of Augusta, Ala., about to start for Richmond, there are... a knife, the blade of which is nineteen inches long, and weighs two pounds and a half.

In Capt. Faulkner's company, of Augusta, Ala., about to start for Richmond, there are... a knife, the blade of which is nineteen inches long, and weighs two pounds and a half.

In Capt. Faulkner's company, of Augusta, Ala., about to start for Richmond, there are... a knife, the blade of which is nineteen inches long, and weighs two pounds and a half.

In Capt. Faulkner's company, of Augusta, Ala., about to start for Richmond, there are... a knife, the blade of which is nineteen inches long, and weighs two pounds and a half.

In Capt. Faulkner's company, of Augusta, Ala., about to start for Richmond, there are... a knife, the blade of which is nineteen inches long, and weighs two pounds and a half.

Vermin. "Cocart's" Rat, Roach, &c. Extirminator. "Cocart's" Flea-bug Extirminator. "Cocart's" Flea-bug Extirminator.

Vermin. "Cocart's" Rat, Roach, &c. Extirminator. "Cocart's" Flea-bug Extirminator. "Cocart's" Flea-bug Extirminator.

Vermin. "Cocart's" Rat, Roach, &c. Extirminator. "Cocart's" Flea-bug Extirminator. "Cocart's" Flea-bug Extirminator.

Vermin. "Cocart's" Rat, Roach, &c. Extirminator. "Cocart's" Flea-bug Extirminator. "Cocart's" Flea-bug Extirminator.

Vermin. "Cocart's" Rat, Roach, &c. Extirminator. "Cocart's" Flea-bug Extirminator. "Cocart's" Flea-bug Extirminator.

Vermin. "Cocart's" Rat, Roach, &c. Extirminator. "Cocart's" Flea-bug Extirminator. "Cocart's" Flea-bug Extirminator.