Court of Quarter Sessions, &c. Before Judges McClure, Mellon, and

MONDAY, Nov. 4th. 1861. Judge Mellon this morning delivered his charge to the jury in the case of Wm. West, has written to Mr. B., informing Veech, of Allegheny, indicted for nul-sance in keeping hog yards, at the stock transfer depot of the Pittsburgh, Fort Company G, Third Pennsylvan Wayne and Chicago Railroad Company. The prosecution submitted a number of points, upon which they asked the Court to instruct the jury-logs were deposited there under authority | been engaged in picket duty, beyond the Fourth, If the jury believed that the defendant kept a large number of hogs, and that the smells complained of originated therefrom, as testified to by the witnesses,

The defendant's counsel also submitted several points.—First, That the jury cannot convict, unless clearly satisfied that the pens are a nuisance to the whole neighborhood; and that the annoyance of a few individuals, at particular times, would not be sufficient. The Court did not affirm this point, alleging it too broad in its terms.

Second, That the sale of cattle, hogs, sheep, etc., in a city, is not necessarily a nuisance. This point was affirmed.

Third, That the total satisfied that the part, assisted by others who have offered their services for the occasion. The providence is not yet published, but is said to be new and attractive, embracing isome concert of any description for some time it is fair to presume that when artistes of real merit come forward they will be greeted by a large audience. Third. That the operation as to whether the defendant is guilty of maintaining a nuisance is solely for the jury to deter-mine, and not a question of law. This point was also affirmed. The Court then remarked that, to constitute a common nuisance, the generality of the people coming within its influence must be annoyed. Population had much to do with the case, but corporate lines or limits nothing. The case would be tried upon its merits, and the jury would arrive at a verdict after considering all the sur-rounding facts and circumstances.

The defendant's counsel contended or alleged that the pens or cattle yards were used by the railroad company under authority of law; that their charter gave nder its authority.

The Court instructed the jury that when these pens at that particular place. Not an absolute, but reasonable necessity. If the pens could be located elsewhere, with less pens could be located essewhere; with reschoof the terminus of the road, then there was no reasonable necessity for their teing located as at present—and, vice versa. A located as at present—and, vice versa. A reasonable necessity, then, must exist for the occupancy of these pens, else they are not occupied under authority of law. In a word, if the smells and stenches arising from the pens of the defendant constitute on public nuisance to the generala common public nuisance to the generality of the people coming within its influence, and if the pens were not reasonably

COMPANY G, THIRD PENNSYLVANIA CAVALRY.—At a recent review, by Major Gen. McClellan, of Gen. Porter's division of our army, the company mentioned points, upon which they asked the Court to instruct the jury—
First, That a pig yard in the limits of a city is a nuisance per se. The Court refused to so charge the jury, as the point was too general. The question whether these partic lar pens constituted a nuisance, would be for the jury to decide upon the evidence, and the inferences deducible therefrom.

Second, That the defendant could not be protected from indictment in consequence of the comparative usefulness of Privates Wm. Sesman. G. Brossy. Wm. duence of the comparative usefulness of his business, or its long continuance, or the existence of kindred offenses around it. The Conrt so charged the jury.

Belonson; Lieutenant wm. L. Gregg; Privates Wm. Seaman. G. Brosey, Wm. Jones, R. Carey, John Morris, Michael McCullough, John Jones, Wm. Carns, A. Williams, D. Murphy, J. Neagle, J. The Conrt so charged the jury.

Third, That the question of ownership of the hogs was immaterial, and that it William Davis and others. Several of was also immaterial as to how they came the privates are workmen from the Clinton into defendant's pens. This point was affirmed, unless it would appear that the than two months ago, the company has an account of our boys. GRAND OPERATIC AND INSTRUMENTAL they must find a verdict of guilty. This point was not affirmed, as being too general in its scope. The jury would determine the point was not affirmed, as being too general in its scope. mine the question of nuisance from the be given on next Thursday evening at Con facts and circumstances developed in the cert Hall.
