

THE PRESS ON THE REMOVAL OF GEN. CAMERON

The New York papers express a variety of opinions on the cause of General Cameron's removal from the Cabinet. The extreme Abolitionists attribute the separation to the General's opinions upon the slavery question, intimating that he has been made a victim to his principles. This is the key to the onslaught which the President will have to encounter from these extreme fanatics. Cameron will now supplant Fremont in their affections, and become the centre around which the Abolitionists will assemble.

The idea of Gen. Cameron allowing himself to become a victim to his principles, is rather too good for even Abolitionists to credit. It has been very well established in the last ten years that he has no political principles. He has boxed the compass, belonging to every political organization in the country, not in pursuit of principle, but of office.

The Times, speaking of the change in the Cabinet, says: "It has been evident that the general opinion of the Administration, and the irreconcilable Mr. Cameron, were in the Cabinet the least radical element, representing the loyal States, has from the first been with slavery, and has been pronounced the suppression of which is essential to the peace of the Union and the future has no occasion of availing itself of Mr. Cameron, born in a slaveholding community, and familiar with the institution, and who has been persecuted with regard to the Union. He considers the guarantee for every political party have inherited, and is willing to give the responsibility of restoring the status quo with the least possible disturbance to the interests of those States."

The Tribune tells us that if a bombshell had fallen into the Senate Chamber, it would not have produced a greater sensation than did the President's removal of Mr. Stanton to the office of Secretary of War.

The Post complains because Brown has been removed from the Cabinet, and because a Catholic, from whom no doubt it is a "humbug and a diffidence" in his "Great Republic." These are the only reasons, no doubt, in the view of the Post.

THE NEW SECRETARY OF WAR

The appointment of Edwin M. Stanton to the United States Cabinet, is the most important event that has occurred since the rebellion broke out. It demonstrates that the President has made up his mind not to be driven by his purpose to save the Union if possible, but to gratify more partisan Abolitionists. His going outside of his party for a Cabinet officer, looks as if country and not party was occupying his thoughts.
