HISTORICAL.
COLONEL CRAWFORD'S DISASTER.
A HISTORICAL SKETCH.
BY EMERSON BERRY.

Which was he going and for what?
That little army had sworn to exterminate the Indians root and branch—to give no quarter to any of the race, Indian, woman or child, and he was the commander of the expedition.
That expedition too, marched over "Williamson's trail," direct to the plundered Moravian towns on the Tuscarawas and thence to the other Moravian towns on the upper branch of the Sandusky, hoping thus to find more innocent and harmless victims to plunder and murder. But they were greatly disappointed, for the harmless Indians had fled, and left desolation behind them. Then, for the first time, it would seem, the thought occurred to this bold army, that the peaceable Indians having departed, they might possibly meet with hostile warriors prepared to give them a warm reception, an idea that they appeared to relish as little as any soldiers that ever went into battle. Not that they would deny there may have been brave and generous spirits among them, but we think there must have been many selfish cowards, since no other word has been mentioned, or been anxious or willing to be forewarned in another.

THE FOLLOWING ARE VOLUN-TARY STATEMENTS of persons of responsibility and character, who have been greatly benefited by the medicine of Dr. Schenck's "PINKETTES," and who feel that it is their duty to state the same for the benefit of others who may be afflicted with the same complaint.

Case of Mrs. M. McCallister.
I have been afflicted with a complaint of the bowels, for some years, and have tried every kind of medicine, but without any permanent benefit. I was advised to try Dr. Schenck's "PINKETTES," and after using a box, I was enabled to eat and sleep peaceably, and the complaint has entirely disappeared. I feel as well as ever, and can say that Dr. Schenck's "PINKETTES" are a wonderful medicine.

Case of Mr. J. M. Keen.
