We sincerely trust that no accidents from fire may occur, and that all our citizens may occur, and that all our citizens may enjoy the occasion so much that the 22d of Fabruary will be long remembered.

We presume the illumination of public and private buildings this evening will be general, and while we hope to see as many general, and while we hope to see as many houses as possible lit up, we wish to give a word of caution. There are many baildings which should not on any account bailluminated, such as oil warehousee and lamp stores, unless the utmost cantion is used in preventing the possibility of fire. Indeed, such large quantities of oil are now stored in the city that more than ordinary care must be exercised by all, for now stored in the city that more than ordical discovered, to her surprise, that it was nary care must be exercised by all, for that inflammable substance would, by cause that inflammable substance would, by cause and the child is not known.
