PITTSBURGH POST. MONDAY MORNING, MARCH 10. OITY MATTERS.

Letters from Rebel Prisoners.

We have been furnished with copies of everal letters written by rebel prisoners aptured at Fort Donelson, from which ve give some extracts:

One, a Surgeon, writing from Dover, renn., under date of February 22d, says: 'I address you as I never have before, a prisoner of war; but do not be alarmed or my safety, as I have fallen into the nands of gentlemen, who treat me as-such. There are not the infamous, black-hearted abolitionists of the New England States, but the "bone and sinew" of the North and Northwestern States. General Grant informed me he had no desire to detain Burgeons, but I feel morally bound not to leave my regiment now that the dark cloud of adversity begins to hover around them. You, I think, would lese the love and respect you have felt for me were I to risoner (war; but do not be alarmed and respect you have felt for me were I to be guilty of such baseness. I know not cold, with a slight fall of snow. The river be guilty of such baseness. I know not as yet what our destination may be; when I reach it I will let you know. I am only slightly wounded and trust soon to be with you. Tell Bob that Owen was in the thickest of the fight and fought like a young lion at bay, perfectly regardless of the balls which flaw thick and fast around him. The battle was terrific and the hardest fought in the history of American warfare. I send this by a Colonel of the other side, who has treated me with mark. ed kindness.
