DAILY POST.

SATURDAY MORNING, MARCH 22.

A Prayer of Thanksgiving.

The following is the prayer of Thanksgiving for our victories which Bishop Whittingham has directed the Episcopal clergy of the Diocese of Maryland to use on all occasions of public worship during the next eight days:

O, Almighty God, the Sovereign Commander of all the world, in whose hand is power and might which none is able to withstand, we bless and magnify Thy great and glorious name for the happy successes which Thou hast of late vouchsafed in so many instances to the arms of this nation, and more especially for the deliverance of this city and district from the terrors of blockade and siege. And we beseech Thee, give to us and to all this people grace to use this great mercy shown toward us to Thy glory, the advancement of Thy Gospel, the honor of our country, and a mind in us in us both the good of all mankind. Stir up our hearts, O Lord, to a true thankfulness, such as may appear in our lives by a humble, holy and obedient walking before Thee all our days; through Jesus Christ our Lord, to whom with Thee, O Father, and Thee, O Holy Ghost, as for all Thy mercies, so in particular for these victories and this deliverance, be all glory and honor, world without end. Amen.

Letter from Gen. Buckner to the Louisville Journal.

We find the following in the Louisville Journal, of Saturday:

To the Editor of the Louisville Journal:

FORT WARREN, }
Mass., March 4, '62. }

GENTLEMEN:—Amongst other luxuries of which I have been deprived since my imprisonment, is the pleasure of perusing those chaste and refreshing notices, with which, for sometime past your paper has honored me; and although in my progress through the North I have met with many attempts on the part of the press at an imitation of your peculiar felicitous style of misrepresentation, I have found none to equal the original. I am therefore under the necessity of applying to the fountain head. I enclose two dollars, for which please send me your country daily, to the following address,

GEN. S. B. BUCKNER,
Care of Col. J. Dimick,
Fort Warren, Mass.

P. S.—Since writing the above, my friend, Col. R. W. Hanson, has reached this celebrated resort, and desires me to add that the present of a demijohn of whisky which he learns you have promised him would never be more acceptable than at this time; the locality and the inclemency as well as the sentiments of our neighbors up the harbor, holding out most tempting inducements to cultivate a taste for that most delightful beverage. As a matter of caution, however, he urges me to add that he hopes, if the liquor be of good quality, you will not venture to taste it, as he might thereby incur much risk in losing it altogether—a privation which, however agreeable to your self, would be attended with serious inconvenience to him, if during the prevalence of the prevailing west easters.

S. B. B.

Hon. W. A. Richardson Declines a Brigadier Generalship.

The Quincy Herald, of the 17th inst., contains the following:

"WASHINGTON, March 1, 1862.

"Hon. A. LINCOLN, President U. S. A.

"SIR:—In the same mail, without solicitation on my part, you did me the honor to tender me the appointment of Brigadier General in the army.

"I signified then my determination to accept the same as soon as my health would permit. Not having since passed the medical examination required by law, and not knowing whether I shall be able to pass it, I deem it improper to retain your commission.

"Courage and gallantry among our officers have won for many of them the title of heroes. I will not stand in the way of even one of them wearing an insignia so nobly and bravely won. I feel, too, that they can be of more service to their country than I can. Already they have led our troops upon bloody fields, shared with them hardships and dangers, and rejoiced with them in victories. Theirs is the well-earned privilege to renew your triumphs upon other fields; and the dauntless soldiers of Belmont, of Henry and of Donelson will insure victory wherever the conflict may ensue.

"I therefore decline the position of Brigadier tendered by you.

"I have the honor to be your obedient servant. W. A. RICHARDSON."

Col. Richardson, in a private note to the editor of the Herald, remarks: "The greatest battle for constitutional liberty is to be fought in Congress and before the people;" and adds: "The rebellion is used up, at least as far as big armies are concerned; they can't bring another into the field."

A Rebel Stone Fleet—A Nut for England.

The Richmond Dispatch publishes the following paragraph, recommending the obstruction of James River by sinking stone-laden vessels:

It is said that iron gun-boats are being prepared at Annapolis for the purpose of passing our batteries on James River. We have often remarked that land batteries, properly constructed, can never be silenced by vessels of any size, and that in the general history of all warfare—with the exception of the present war, in which our batteries, with few exceptions, have been of the most miserable description—land fortifications have always proven too much for ships. But batteries can be passed without much danger by gunboats at full speed, and to meet this contingency, vessels loaded with stone should be sunk in the channel, and if necessary, iron-clad piles be also driven in, surrounded by chevaux de frieze of trees, which could be easily cut down from the neighboring shore, and so arranged as to give the enemy a tangled knot to untie before he could get at the obstructions in the river.

What will John Bull say to this, after all his ferocious outcry over the stone blockade of Charleston?

Son of the Regiment.

The Louisville Journal, in noticing the departure from that city of Col. Mundy's Regiment, the Twenty-third Kentucky, which was recruited in Covington and Newport, says:

"Accompanying this regiment is a young lad about nine years old, from Cincinnati, who attached himself to the soldiers while they were in Covington, and has followed the fortunes of the regiment ever since.—He has never faltered on the march, and, no matter how early the reveille is beaten, George Suter, for that is his name, is sure to be on hand. Bright, intelligent and active, the little fellow has won all hearts, and the rough camp life has not detracted from his youthful simplicity, nor has he been spoiled by petting. Officers and men all vie in attentions to him, and he is emphatically the 'Son of the Regiment.'"

The Spring Fashions.

According to the Paris fashions for the present month, the mode of decreasing the width of the skirts of dresses at the waist is more and more adopted; the bottom of the skirt must be very full—an ample training skirt is quite inadmissible in the streets—only allowable for in doors or carriage wear. Even tartatan and tulle dresses are made with trains. Every breadth is corded; all silk dresses are submitted to this rule.—Visiting dresses are no longer made with plain skirts. That which constitutes the true elegance of a robe is the trimming.

American Mechanics.

The improvements in farming tools are exciting compliments toward American ingenuity and enterprise throughout the world. One of the best authorities in these matters—the London Mark-Lane Express—declares that "the Americans, the Australian, Indian, and other colonial markets, owing to their lighter and cheaper articles;" and adds that "unless our British mechanics bestir themselves, by using steel instead of heavy castings, they will be likely to be beaten on their ground."
