Houses between the battle field and Strasburg, and even far beyond, have since been found filled with the dead and dying of the enemy. Graves have been found far removed from the road, where the inhabitants of the country buried them as they died. General Banks, in his pursuit of the enemy beyond Strasburg afterwards, found houses on the road, filled in this manner, and presenting the most ghastly spectacle. The havoc made in the ranks of the rebels has struck this whole region of the rebeis has struck this whose region of country with terror. Such a blow had never fallen on them before, and it is more crushing because wholly unexpected. Jackson and his stone wall brigade, and all the other brigades accompanying him, will never meet this division in battle again.
