DALLY POST Lieut. Col. Herron

WEDNESDAY MOBNING, APRIL 2 . porting of the state CITY AND NEIGHBORNOOD INTELLIGENCE

The First of April. The First of April. We never have been able to learn by what coincidence "All Fools' Day" and moving day fall together or whether one appellation is a natural sequence of the other. At all events many of the unpre-cedented number who, from necessity or choice, "filted" yesterday must have appreciated the connection. We confess that we do not know why "of all the days in the year" the first of April should be chosen tor a general change of habitations; it is generally wet, raw, low-ering, raining or otherwise disagreeably. If it is necessary for all who have not "a local habitation and a name," to move on the same day, the time should be changed until a more pleasant scason, say the first of May, as in the East, when the weather is generally settled. Through-out yesterday he streets were crowd-ed with wagons, heavily laden with house-hold goods, while men, women, bory and sits, with dirt-begrimed faces, hur-We never have been able to learn by at Leetown and Elkhorn, in Arkansas, satisfaction to hat coincidence "All Fools' Day" and (known officially as the battle of Pea Ridge,) their business. out yesternay the streets were crowd-ed with wagons, heavily laden with house-hold goods, while men, women, boys and girls, with dirt begrimed faces, hur-riedly moved along the sidewalks, carrying some article too fragile or prescious to be entrusted in the care of a hired driver or exposed to the perils of jolting over the boulders-all was commotion and confu-sion: especially when one family was moving out of and another into the same house. The general object of so much there there was a large demand this spring large tenements in every quarter of the city being vacant. We hope all the "filt-ters" have bettered their condition by moving, or at least so much that they will not feel the necessity of moving again next year, whether it be on the first of May: The Claveland and Brittshameth Teachers' Institute.
