This is the title of a mysterious, oathbound secret association, which was said to have existed in the Southern States, some two or three yearsago. Its object was the control of the present. I have not seen any thing that has lowered the Southern States, some two or three yearsago. Its object was thought to be the organization of a great more in my estimation, than the destruction expedition for the purpose of conquering of this Church; the British left it untouch-Cuba, and overrunning the border States of Mexico. It was, at the time referred to, confined to certain classes, at least so son, Monroe and Cornwallis worshiped said by those who pretended to under- the Church is built in the shape of the stand and explain it. We remember that cross; at one end there was a fine tower, one of the obligations, of the Circle, which was exposed, was that a member must be church in the town has shared the same a native born American, having no symfate. All the public buildings are in ruins; pathy or connection with the Roman Catle the fine Bank building is laying in ashes; olic religion.

Whether this organization ever amounted it more effectually. I passed, on my way whether it is in existence still, we have no knowledge; but whatever may have been its condition or intention it enpers like its condition or intention, it appears, like all such revolutionary organizations, to have been short lived. We now hear noth-now laid in waste; the house is occupied now laid in waste; the house is occupied.

We have been prompted to these observations by proceedings in the U.S. Senate, from here. We marched about twelve in relation to this "Golden Circle," with miles in order to flank the rebels, but as which no less a person than an Ex-Presi- usual, when we advance they retire. When dent of the United States was said to be the connected—we mean Gen. Pierce. It appears that a note was sent from the State still burning and everything denoted as pears that a note was sent from the State Department, to Mr. Pierce, stating that such a charge was made against him; adding that "any information on the subject there, as there is a large force concentration." would be acceptable." To this piece of ted there. insolence, based upon the accusation of some anonymous scribbler, the Ex-President replied with some indignation, ex-fax, of Indiana, on the subject of taxing pressing surprise that such a charge should upon advertisements in newspapers. Mr. Seward thought proper to apologize for the officious conduct of his first subordinate.

Mr. Colfax, (rep.) of Ind., moved to strike out from the bill the section levying a tax on newspages advertisements. He looked upon this mode of taxation as oppressive and unjust, and would briefly state his reasons for the faith that was in him. The proprietors of newspapers were willing to bearther full proportion of the burthens imposed on the suppression of this unboly rebellion, and they were ready to make all proper sacrifices to sustain and support the government; but it would be easy to show that this tax on newspapers were ready to make all proper sacrifices to sustain and support the government; but it would be easy to show that this tax on newspapers advertisements. weight, of Indian, succes south: if this United States, on Tuesday, on the bill for an desire to see much the emancipation of slavery in the District encamped on an immense three miles from Hampton; of Columbia. The Sensior concluded as morning the whole camp is under follows: morning the whole camp is under that any on it is a very disagreeable place. When I awoke this morning, I found about three inches of water in my tent, and about one foot all around the Camp. The boys are at work wringing out their blankets and clothing. I paid a visit yesterday to Fortress Monroe and Hampton: I have never in my life beheld such absolute destruction and vandalism as there is in Hampton. You know that all the elite of this part of the country resided at this once beautiful place; now you can see nothing but blackened walls and leaded to the country resided at this once beautiful place; now you can see nothing but blackened walls and leaded to the country resided at this once beautiful place; now you can see nothing but blackened walls and leaded to the country resided at this once beautiful place; now you do that, and we'll do this. It was time enough when the States under was time enough when the States under-took to act in the matter, and came here lonely chimneys. Every vestige of beauty has been destroyed. I could not but feel or will not do. He held that there were influences at work, during this war, especially, which in due time would settle this whole constitute to the settle that the settle this whole constitute to the settle that the settle the settle that the settle the settle the settle that there were influences at work, during this war, especially when the settle that there were influences at work, during this war, especially, which in due time would settle the settle that the settl sad as I lingered around the old Episcopal Church, one of the oldest in the country it was built, I believe, some two hundred and twenty years ago, everything around his whole question as to slavery. Those nfluences were silently accomplishing a influences were silently accomplishing revolution, without the aid of any of thos revolution, without the aid of any of those legislatives and agitating schemes, in the border States particularly, which must be greatly to their advantage in the end, and do violence and injustice to none. In this connection he mentioned that of the regied ; it was left for our own people to comients from Indiana a considerable num mit this piece of sacrilege. In this Church have Washington, Jeffer ber of marriages had taken place in Mary-land, and this was the case with other citizens from the free States who had heretofore been buying and settling on the lands, and now the same would be done to a once the pride of the whole country, now larger extent than ever. This very spring the soil is being turned up by new comers, and in some instances on lands which, within the past sixty days, have been pur-chased within fifty miles of this capital. In reference to the extremes which preniled in Congress, Mr. W. remarked that the great sectional excitement under which the country had so long labored, culmina-ted in 1860, and hence the presence of such elements in such force here now; but the reaction was coming, was now rising, which all such revolutionary organizations, to have been short lived.
