The following, drawn by Mr. Bigham ity with a character as intellectual, as faswill be placed on the county bill now in cinating and desperate as Schiller's Charles the Senate in lieu of the section proposed De Moor. by Mr. Hutchman.

The burning of the town of Leipsic by theorder of that captain of incendiaries; the plot for the destruction of the entire Vene-tian Senate by Peirre, a disappointed ad-venturer; the conspiracy of Guy Fawkes, for the blowing up of the English House of Parliament, were not more desperate enter-prises than Beauregard is capable of un-dertaking. We base these observations on the strength of two statements, which are attributed to this rebel commander. The New York Evening Post states up on the authority of one who professes to know, that last summer, some time, Beau-regard sent the following dispatch, in ci-pher, to a rebel in Washington, and that it The burning of the town of Leipsic by pher, to a rebel in Washington, and that it

Truly, &c., embellished it. At all events it seems incredible, because it is well known that however much the rebels desired the removal of the two important personages alluded to they had no fears of the residents of Washington, who, at the time referred to, were nearly all secessionists. But if Beauregard did write such a communication, it may account for his present desperation. Immediately before the late terrible battle at Pittsburg, he is reported to have said, upon entering the fight, that "he would at its conclusion water his horse" command; and his thanks for the full, this portion of the Department of the South, which Gen. Sherman has furnished desperation. Immediately before the late "he would at its conclusion water his horse in the Tennessee river or in hell; that the fight before them was hell unless success-ful." tion of his plans. Defant Notes. Not the least remarkable among the in-cidents of the seige is the defiance cast back and forth by the opposing armies in the stirring notes of the military bands. In the soft twilight of these lovely spring days, the bands of therebel regiments sau-cily play the air of "Dixie," and the lines are so close together that the music is dis-tinctly heard in our camp, while we send are so close together that the music is dis-tinctly heard in our camp, while we send back the glorious strains of the "Star-Span-gled Banner," and drown the cheers of the enemy with shouts that find a ringing echo in the woods. Our traces are agent to get on or by letter. Every Machine v arranted for three years.
