HARRISBURG CORRESPONDENCE.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,
April 14, 1862.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,
April 14, 1862.

Hon. Speaker Rowe called the House to order at 10 o'clock. The prayer this morning was appropriate to the occasion.

The Hon. Wm. Hopkings presented the following resolution: "Resolved, that the thanks of this House be tendered to the Hon. John Rowe, Speaker, for his ability with which he has discharged the duties of the chair." Passed unanimously, save four votes.

Judge Shannon offered a complimentary resolution to John A. Small, Esq., Clerk. Passed unanimously on the call of the yeas and nays.

Other officers were complimented. Unanimously from both branches are on the alert, passing to and fro.

Mr. Woodhouse sang the "Star Spangled Banner" in good style, accompanied by friend Smith of the city.

The Hon. Thomas Williams was requested to address the multitude present, which gentleman did in his usual splendid manner. At 11 o'clock the House adjourned.

The Senate.
Hon. George V. Lawrence was chosen Speaker of the Senate. His address was modest and to the point. The valedictory of Speaker Hall was in good taste and rather eloquent.

This body also dissolved in the highest of humor pleased with themselves and the rest of mankind. At 11 o'clock a committee of the Senate was announced, requesting the House to remain in session until the Senate would adjourn.

The Senate adjourned at 12 o'clock. The House adjourned at 12 o'clock. The House adjourned at 12 o'clock.

The Senate.
Senator Irish, called up the Judge bill and it passed; this is final passage. The bill to allow the city of Pittsburgh to compromise with the bondholders, passed finally.

Presentations.
A most beautiful one was presented to the first workkeeper, Casper Gang, Esq., this evening, by his numerous friends.

The House and Senate adjourned for an hour to call in his Excellency in compliance with the polite invitation extended. The entertainment was superb, everything that could make the inner man comfortable being most honorably supplied. The Governor looked every inch the grand and courteous and gentlemanly Executive of the first state of the Union.

The Secretary of the Commonwealth was this moment announced, with a message from the Governor: "The appropriation bill signed."

"The military bill passed."

Bills Signed.
"An act changing the organization and jurisdiction of the Court of Common Pleas of the county of Allegheny."
"An act to incorporate the Citizens' Gas Light Company."
"An act to prevent horses, cattle, sheep and swine from running at large in the county of Allegheny."
"An act requiring the resumption of specie payments of the Bank of Allegheny."
"An act to authorize the Councils of the city of Pittsburgh to compromise with the bondholders of said city."
"An act to attach Erie and Crawford counties to the Eastern District of the Supreme Court."
"Supplement to an act entitled an act relative to licenses on vehicles in the cities of Pittsburgh and Allegheny, Boroughs, &c."
"An act incorporating the Union Express Company." This bill was fraudulently reported to the Governor and was this moment repealed on the motion of Hon. Thomas Williams.

"An act supplementary to an act incorporating the Cleveland and Pittsburgh Railroad Company."
"A further supplement to an act to regulate and continue a system of education of common schools, approved, &c."
"Joint Resolution relative to furnishing necessary clothing to wounded Pennsylvania soldiers."
"Joint Resolution in relation to the Bank of Commerce."
"Joint Resolution for revising the Revenue Laws of this Commonwealth."
Signed: A. G. CURTIS.

The Speaker addressed the House most eloquently while it sat, and therefore had not the opportunity to repeat his touching remarks in parting with the members. And here comes the correspondence of your correspondent at the Capital, with most profound respect. I close my labors, with my best regards to the members personally and collectively for their friendly and cordiality to me.

Adopted the 14th day of April, 1862.
Signed: J. F. BARR.

SELECT TALE.

How Jack Phillips Recovered the Mule from the Seceder.

BY CAPTAIN JERRY WILLIAMS.

"Yes, a little in my coat pocket; why don't you get it out?"

"That's what fills you for, and it's a wonder he ain't cut you up body and breeches afore this, to get the liquor. I old Bailey, you got down there, and get as drunk as a bear. Fact, sir, that mule can kick your hat off, and you on his back."

"That can't be so," said the quartermaster, incredulously.

"Try him," said Jack. "I've just got a couple of dollars to give you if you'll ride him a rod."

By this time the quartermaster's attendants had got out of sight, and his aversions were all for the mule. He thought, "Jack's gold, thinking he couldn't be more than thrown off anyhow."

The night before this meeting, Jack had quietly stolen into the mule's stable, and having placed a ladder against the wall, he had climbed up, and under the full of pointed spars, under the light of a candle, putting a piece of light leather over the points of the mule's and the mule's back, so that a noose could be sure would force them through into the animal's head.

Ignorant of this, the greedy quartermaster moved the mule to the back, and sprang on him just where the dog-collar, a boulder in his head, and he lit springing in the mud. The mule flung in the pain of the nails still sticking in his head, and ran furiously across the field, rolling, jumping, and plunging about at a terrible rate.

"I told you so," said Jack coolly, as the quartermaster scrambled up, rubbing his bruised head, and looking at the mud on his breeched horse.

"It is worse than seven devils, ain't it?" said the quartermaster.

"In course he is," replied Jack.

"What'll you give me for the chance of another horse?" asked the quartermaster.

"Don't know," said Jack, "the halter might be worth a dollar or so, if I could get it off his head."

"But where's my horse?" asked the quartermaster, looking around in astonishment.

"He's over there," replied Jack, "the mule gave him a hilt with his heels just as he started, and he ain't seed the horse since."

"Hello, quartermaster! I shouted a man in Secesh uniform was coming up the road at the top of his speed; 'hello!' Mr. Quartermaster, the enemy is coming right down on our camp and the general wants you immediately. Our army is running out of the sharp cut with a whip and spur as you can run, or the enemy will be behind you and your fellows."

Billie wanted to hear no more, but broke for his quarters.

He arrived, and found that the story was false, Florida was the vengeance he owed; he had time to execute his threats, Florida army was in a remote part of the State.

It is hardly necessary to add, that the messenger who so carelessly gave out the story, and that Jack had turned the quartermaster and his horse with his head up the road, and by a sharp cut with a whip and spur, sent him out of sight before Billie recovered from his confusion.

Quartermaster got his mule again, little by little, and the quartermaster was quiet and useful an animal as there is in the army.

The double eagle Jack returned to the quartermaster, and the quartermaster's horse as compensation for his services.

Phillips says he would like to have an opportunity to see the quartermaster sacrificing patriot of the glorious Confederacy, whether it hurt when the mule kicked his hat off.
