Beauregard's Army. The army which Beauregard command Pittsburg must have been in very fine condition; a correspondent of the Mississippi Clarion, speaking of it said : Our forces at Corinth and elsewhere are well arranged to take advantage of a victory, which we expect will surely crown our exertions. We have now an army more formidable in all respects than any we have yet had. Beauregard, since we came West, has yet been very laboriously and successfully engaged in bringing order out of disorder and courage out of dismay. He has reorganized the whole army, displacing the old and cowardly, and those who had been tried and found wanting. Pillow and Floyd are entirely without commands, and Breckinridge has only a small well arranged to take advantage of a vicmands, and Breckinridge has only a small brigade.
