Lieut. Col. Herron.

This gallant officer, who was wounded in the battle of Pea Ridge, Ark., left Dubuque for this city on Sunday night and will reach here to-day. His wound, a fracture in the leg by a cannon ball, is not dangerous and he is rapidly improving.

In view of the coming of this gallant soldier, Mr. McAuley, President of Select Council, offered the following preamble and resolutions, last evening, in that body.

WHEREAS, We have learned that our former townsman, Lieut. Col. Frank J. Herron (now of Iowa) will reach this city to-morrow on a visit to his relatives and friends here; therefore be it Resolved, by the Select and Common Councils of the City of Pittsburgh, that the gallant achievements of Lieut. Col. Herron in the hard fought field of Wilson's Creek (where the noble Lyon fell) and in the still more terrible battle at Pea Ridge, entitle him to the public gratitude and the honorable notice of his fellow-citizens.

Resolved, That we, as Pittsburghers, feel a just pride in the bright career of our yet youthful hero, and that we extend to him a cordial welcome to his native city.

Resolved, That a committee of five be appointed, (two from the Select and three from the Common Council) to wait in connection with the Mayor of the city, upon Lieut. Col. Herron, upon his arrival, and present him formally with these resolutions and escort him to the home of his parents.

These resolutions were adopted in both branches and a committee appointed, consisting of Messrs. Miller and Phillips of the Select and Messrs. Fryer, A. Hays and Armstrong of the Common Council, to carry them out.

Heavy Carrying Business.

The Oil City Register says: "The towboat Tiber, belonging to R. D. Cochran & Co., has carried from this point to Pittsburgh, since the middle of March, over 10,000 barrels of oil. The same boat has brought to this port 6,000 empty barrels, and a large lot of miscellaneous merchandize.

Storm.

A very severe storm visited New Lebanon, Mercer county, on Thursday of last week. The roof of the Academy was torn off, and the most of the barns in the neighborhood underwent a similar transformation, while smaller out houses were all leveled to the ground.

Home.

Mr. Wetzell, of Birmingham, who was taken prisoner in Tennessee, by the rebels, last fall, while purchasing dried fruit, and who was imprisoned at Memphis and other points, escaped after the surrender of Island No. 10, and reached this city in safety a day or two since.

The Connellsville Railroad.

The Wheeling Press states that an arrangement is about being consummated that will insure the early completion of this road to Connellsville.

Mayor Drum, Monday fined several young men arrested for loafing about the corners on Sunday.

Sentence of Court Martial.

Gen. Pope has approved the finding of a Court Martial in the case of Col. Ewing was President, by which Henry Kuhl and Hamilton W. Windon, convicted of murdering a soldier of the U. S. Army, were sentenced to death by hanging, and fixed the time and place of execution at Suttonsville, Braxton county, Va., on the 9th of May. Conrad Kuhl, convicted on the same charge, was sentenced to be taken in chains to the Dry Tortugas or other unfinished fortification, there to be kept at hard labor, with ball and chain on the left ankle, during the war. The finding was approved and the prisoner ordered to be sent to the military prison at Camp Chase, to be kept at hard labor, according to the terms of the sentence.

The Pennsylvania Reserves.

A gentleman from the encampments of the Pennsylvania Reserves reports that the whole division is in most excellent health and spirits, and the men are delighted with the change in their camping grounds. They are anxious that Colonel Simmons, of the Fifth, should be made a Brigadier General; and they are solidly moving in the matter. Colonel Simmons belongs to Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, and is attached to the regular army.

Rebel Captured--Negroes Firing on a Wounded Soldier.

The Seventh Maine regiment went out on a reconnoissance yesterday, and captured one prisoner—one of the F. F. V.'s—by the name of W. Hudson Daily. He was armed with the Enfield rifle, sword bayonet. The way the prisoner was captured was this. One of the Maine Captains, commanding the reserve of the skirmishers, saw one of the skirmishers fall, known as James Sherry, and instantly some five negroes pounced upon him, and while he lay on the ground emptied their guns into his wounded body. The captain stated that this was more than human flesh could stand: he ordered a charge, and gallantly drove in the enemy, capturing this Virginian. The reserve amounted to only fifteen.

This is not the first instance of the enemy having, during the present siege, assassinated our wounded. Bayonet wounds were found among the dead Vermonters, who were known to have been wounded from shots. Our officers have seen them commit these murderous acts.

Gen. Buell's Conduct.

An officer engaged in the battle writes:

"I wish you could have seen the gallantry, the bravery, the coolness of Gen. Buell. He seemed to be omnipresent. If ever man was qualified to command an army it is he. He is a great, a very great General, and has proved himself so; not only in organizing and disciplining an army, but in handling it. Gen. Buell had his horse shot from under him. Capt. Wright, his Aid, had the visor of his cap touched by a ball."

A soldier gives the following account of Gen. Buell's strategy in the field:

"On Monday morning about 10 o'clock Gen. Buell executed a manœuvre that reflects great credit on him as a commander. The rebels were advancing in great force to turn our left, and capture our transports and supplies, when Buell, becoming aware of their intentions, made preparations to receive them. About half a mile above the landing are two large ridges running back from the river. The ridge next to the landing is the highest. Buell placed a battery on each of the ridges, and between them he placed a brigade of infantry. The troops were ordered to lie down. He then ordered the lower battery to fire on the enemy, and make a show of retreating in confusion, so as to draw the rebels on. On came the rebels pell-mell, yelling at the top of their voices, 'Bull Run,' 'Bull Run,' thinking, I suppose, to frighten us.

"As soon as the rebels came in range, the lower battery, agreeably to orders, opened fire, retreated and took up a position in rear of of the upper battery. The rebels, seeing our men retreating, charged up the hill and took possession of the battery. The rebels, in the meantime, were not aware of our troops being in the hollow below them. At this moment the signal was sounded, and the whole brigade rose to their feet, and poured a deadly fire of rifle-balls into the ranks of the rebels, cutting them down by scores. At this favorable moment, also, the upper battery poured in a perfect storm of grape and canister shot. The rebels reeled and staggered like drunken men, and at last broke and fled in every direction, leaving the ground strewed with dead and dying."
