Our troops advanced through an open field on their hands and knees until within the close musket rauge. The rebels who were secreted behind stumps and trees were anxious to get our men on their feet, and to accomplish this the Captain in command of the enemy shoated at the height of his voice to charge bayonets, supposing that our frightened troops would instantly jump to their feet and run, but they were misted into them a well directed fire causing them to retreat, leaving their dead and wounded to be cared for afterwards.
