DAILY POST.

THE CONFISCATION BILL.

Speech of Senator Browning.

On Tuesday, Senator Trumbull's confiscation bill being up for consideration, Mr. Browning, of Republican Illinois, addressed the Senate in opposition to it. He said:

Mr. BROWNING (Rep.) of Illinois, said that if the passage of the bill tended to crush the rebellion and restore peace, even then he should hesitate, but he had a strong conviction that it would tend to exactly opposite results. When, in addition to that, he believed that the passage would be a gross violation of the Constitution, he could not hesitate as to his duty. He said his colleague complained that the bill was misrepresented; if so, it was entirely owing to the language of the bill, which certainly makes a sweeping confiscation. He contended that Congress had no power to undertake to execute any law of confiscation; the Executive only has the power to carry such a law into effect. We must refer to the law of nations to ascertain what property can be confiscated, and then the Executive only can execute the law. The laws of nations are binding on this nation, and the obligation is expressly acknowledged in the Constitution. All exigencies are fully provided for in the law of nations, much better than by any legislation of Congress. No greater mistake was ever made than supposing that the Constitution in any way hampers the crushing out of rebellion by fierce and strong blows. The passage of the bill could have no other effect than to exasperate one side, and to complicate and embarrass the other. If we keep within the limits of the Constitution, we have no right to pass such a bill, and no possible advantage could result which equals the evils which are so from a revolution of the great charter of our liberties. He had labored to inform himself what had best be done for the interests of our country. It seemed to him that only evil could result from any departure from the Constitution. We must first ascertain what relation the rebels are to sustain to us during the war. We cannot admit them to be alien enemies—that would be to admit their independence; and in the success of the rebellion they must stand in one or the other relation. First, as citizens in so formidable a rebellion as to reach to the dignity of a civil war, in which they must be recognized as belligerents and public enemies while the war lasts, and deal with them according to the laws of war, with the right to resume authority over them when the rebellion is subdued; or, second, to treat them as insurgent citizens, entitled to no belligerent rights, but subject to immediate conviction and execution for treason as soon as captured. We cannot do this last, as it would lead to the indiscriminate slaughter of prisoners on both sides. All admit that we must recognize them as belligerents, and entitled to the rights of war while the rebellion lasts. If we recognize them as belligerents while the war lasts, we are bound to deal with them precisely as we would with a foreign nation. Could we pass any such bill as this in regard to a foreign nation, or could we execute it if we did pass it? The Constitution declares that no attainder for treason shall work corruption of the blood or forfeiture except during the life of the person attained, yet the bill attempts to do that very thing, and forfeit all the property of the rebels of every kind forever. The prohibition of the Constitution against forfeiture is imperative, but the bill assumes the monstrous proposition that, by assuming guilt, you may punish with severity which the Constitution absolutely forbids, when the offense is proved and ascertained. The bill provides for the punishment of treason by Congress, and the infliction of a punishment absolutely forbidden by the Constitution, without trial or indictment, on such ground that the rebel is beyond judicial process. His colleague (Mr. Trumbull) had said, "the bill provides for forfeiture as a punishment for crime hereafter to be committed, where the person committing the offense cannot be reached, and the right to confiscate the property of the rebel or traitor attaches without any conviction of the offender." If Congress has the right to confiscate for treason, why not for murder, larceny, or other offenses? Can it be possible that we had wandered so far from the political faith of our fathers as to admit the fatal heresy that the right to confiscate the property of a rebel or traitor attaches without any conviction of the offender? To do so it is to subvert the Constitution, and send away all the limitations sought to be imposed, and to establish a legislative despotism more capricious and more fatal to the liberties of the citizen than any form of government on earth.

Mr. Browning argued at some length that the bill in fact and effect is a bill of attainder, which is expressly prohibited by the Constitution, and closed with an appeal to stand by the Constitution in all its force and purity.

The Naval Appropriation Bill.

The Confiscation Committee of the House will report early next week the naval appropriation bill. It appropriates for the year ending June, 1863, over forty-three millions and a half. One item for the purchase of additional steam vessels, provides that, when consistent with the public service, no person shall be employed to make contracts except naval officers, and when so employed, shall not receive more than five thousand dollars yearly.—The tax bill will be reported from the Senate Finance Committee in a few days.

[Concluded.]

"The poor jeweler, nearly ruined by this robbery, had to remove his much-diminished business to another part of Paris, where his name was sunk in that of his partners. Many years after he received a message from one Monsieur Teron, described as a gentleman holding an official situation, who desired to purchase some rings. Instead of sending a clerk he went himself, and was shown into a partially-lighted bed-chamber, where, in the invalid in bed, he recognized his old customer, the ci devant Prince Gargarin. The recognition was not mutual, and the jeweler held his tongue and bided his time.

"From the rings exhibited, a few were selected, to the value of 6,000 francs, and M. Teron, declaring that he had not the means of paying in cash, asked if the jeweler would exchange against a curious old snuff-box, which he declared to be of great value. This was an octagon-shaped china snuff-box, ornamented with ten miniatures by Clinchsteil, set in gold and rubies. No one knew its value so well as the jeweler, for it was one which had been stolen from himself shortly before Prince Gargarin's visit. Moreover, he knew, what few others did, that it had a secret spring by means of which all the minatures could be taken out of their settings, and their reverses exhibited, on which were painted subjects, treated, with admirable skill, in the indelicate style peculiar to the age of Louis XV.

"Without any hesitation, the jeweler valued the box at 50,000 francs, which was much more than M. Teron expected. The jeweler, on the other hand, said it was probably worth even more, and made this proposal: 'Take the rings you have chosen, and put the box in an envelope, stating it to be my property,—if it does not bring more than 50,000 francs, you shall have the rings for nothing.'

"Gratified at the idea of being able to obtain the rings without opening his purse, M. Teron assented. Two of his neighbors, one of them a notary, were sent for, and the invalid asked, 'Who shall fix the price of the box?' 'You, sir,' said the jeweler. 'I will lay a wager that you value it at 500,000 francs. Let me tell you in private a circumstance connected with this box which will enable you to perceive its real value.'

"M. Teron, curious and anxious enough now, gave his consent, and the two referees retired. Then the jeweler said, 'Sixteen years ago that snuff-box was stolen from me, when I traded on the Boulevard des Italiens—a few days before I was robbed of 200,000 francs' worth of diamonds by yourself, under the assumed name of Prince Gargarin. My evidence relative to the loss of the box is on the records of the police. You now declare the box to be yours. I have already sworn that I purchased the box at a public sale. The man who sold it to me is still alive. I know a secret about the box which will further prove my ownership—a secret which you have not discovered. Unless you fully repair all the wrongs you have done me, I shall at once have you arrested as a thief. I give you five minutes to determine.'

"Within that time, thus driven into a corner, M. Teron, who really was an invalid, handed his keys to the jeweler, and bade him open a drawer, in which he would find 300,000 francs in billets de banque, and signed a cheque for 200,000 francs more, payable at his banker's that same day. This done, the witnesses were recalled.

"'Gentlemen,' said the jeweler, exhibiting the bank-notes and cheque, 'you see that M. Teron has become aware of the value of the box. He has purchased it back from me for five hundred thousand francs. Is it not so?' 'Yes,' sighed M. Teron, 'I have given him that sum.' 'Then,' said the jeweler, 'here is the box and I will let you have the rings into the bargain. You may explain the mystery as you please; for my part, I promise eternal secrecy.'

"The jeweler retired, leaving the witnesses in amaze and M. Teron in dismay. The notary was unable to keep silent, and the police eventually unraveled the mystery, though the jeweler faithfully observed his promise of secrecy. M. Teron, who was so immensely rich as to leave three millions of francs to his heirs, never recovered from the mortification of having been detected and compelled to refund with compound interest."

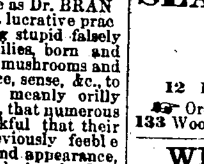
TO THE PUBLIC.



ESPECIALLY the ignorant and falsely Modest of all denominations, treat secret and delicate disorders, self-abuse and diseases or tuations common and incident to youths of both sexes, and adults, single or married. Because DR. BRANSTRUP publishes the fact of his doing so, the ignorant and falsely modest are dreadfully shocked, and think it a great sin very immoral and for contamination and corruption among their wives, promising sons and daughters. Their family physician should be cautious to keep them in ignorance that they do the same as Dr. BRANSTRUP, (except publishing) lest a lucrative practice might be lost to them among stupid falsely modest and presumptuous families, born and raised in ignorance, sprung up as mushrooms and who compare society, intelligence, sense, &c., to dollars and cents, mysteriously, meanly orilly gotten. It is to publicity, however, that numerous parents and guardians are thankful that their sons, daughters and wards, previously feeble sickly and of delicate condition and appearance, have been restored to health and vigor by DR. BRANSTRUP, besides many before and after marriage through him have been saved much suffering, anxiety, mortification, &c. Spermatorrhea or nocturnal emmissions, are completely cured in a very short space of time by his new remedies, which are peculiarly his own. They are compounds from the Vegetable Kingdom, having seen the fallacy of the Mercurial treatment, he has abandoned it and substituted the vegitable Female diseases are treated with marked success—having had over forty years (40) experience in their treatment in hospitals of both the Old World and in the United States; leads him to say—to all with a fair trial, health and happiness will again bloom upon the now—palled cheek. Trifle no longer with montebanks and quacks, but come and be cured Consumption and all of its kindred diseases, of which so many annually fill our countries, can now be relieved, providing they attend to it in time Full particulars can be had of my treatment by procuring a copy of the Medical Adviser, which is given gratis to all that apply Having the advantage of over forty years experience and observation, consequently, he has superior skill in the treatment of special diseases, and who is daily consulted by the profession, as well as recommended by repectable citizens, publishers, proprietors of hotels, &c. TO HORSE OWNERS.—DR. SWEET'S INFALLIBLE LINIMENT FOR HORSES is unrivalled by any, in all cases of Lameness, arising from Sprains, Bruises or Wrenching, its effect is magical and certain. Harness or Saddle Galls, Scratches, Mange, &c., it will also speedily cure Spavin and Ringbone may easily be prevented and cured in their incipient stages, but confirmed cases are beyond the possibility of a RADICAL CURE. No case of the kind, however, is so desperate or hopeless but it may be alleviated by this Liniment, and its faithful application will always remove the Lameness, and enable the horse to travel with comparative ease.
Every horse owner should have this remedy at hand, for its timely use at the first appearance of Lameness will effectually prevent those formidable diseases mentioned, to which all horses are liable, and which render so many otherwise valuable horses nearly worthless.
