DAILY POST.

FRIDAY MORNING, MAY 16.

From the London Star, April 23.

The Famous Bishop of Orleans Prays for the Union Cause.

Mgr. Dupanloup, Bishop of Orleans, having recently addressed a letter to the clergy of his diocese condemning slavery, the Temps praises without restriction the sentiments of the learned prelate, and expresses its satisfaction at being able to admire at the same time the eloquent language employed and the opinions expressed.

We openly acknowledge, says that journal, that the Bishop of Orleans has been happily inspired in this circumstance.—While protesting that he will take no part in the lamentable quarrel which now divides the United States, Mgr. Dupanloup sums up the circumstances of it in striking terms; he then recalls the regular, equitable and pacific measures proposed and adopted to put an end to slavery, concluding in the following precise terms:

It is the first time within sixty years that the central power has adopted a decided line of conduct in the matter, and that it has engaged the entire nation in a vigorous effort against the evil. The question, therefore, without being terminated, is seriously entered on; a step has been made, a path of hope has been opened. That is an additional motive for myself, and an imperious need to pray God that He may deign to bless an enterprise the pacific solution of which must be ardently wished for.

Then, rising above the local question, Mgr. Dupanloup combats hand to hand the principles of slavery, and terminates by quoting that famous declaration of the Council of La Rochelle, drawn up in 1853, shortly after the emancipation of the slaves in the French colonies. The Catholic church has always deplored the severe slavery in which a multitude of men are retained, to the great detriment of their souls, and has never ceased to labor to remedy so great an evil. Without, indeed, examining too closely if that has always been the doctrine of the Catholic church, we applaud the "ardent vicws" formed by Mgr. Dupanloup, "that this severe slavery should at length cease on the entire surface of the christian world."

The Bishop of New Orleans does not continue his hopes to the liberation of negroes in America; but in noble language he exclaims in terminating:

Alas! slaves are not the only people oppressed. There are countries even in Europe, for there is Ireland, there is Poland, there is Syria, where oppression exists, under a different form, without being a lesser evil. For myself, I shall never resign myself to any evil; I deplore all, and wish that I were able to remedy all; and, if my life is sufficiently long, with the grace of God, I will consecrate it entirely to contributing my weak share of effort and labor to effacing, one by one, all the scourges which desolate humanity. If I could act I would do so; if I could speak I would raise my voice; if I can only pray, I will at least address my prayer to God.
