One of the most delicious drinks for a feverish patient, or one whose diseased taste rejects water, teas, &c., is that of properly prepared juices of tart fruits. Indeed, it is to be ardently wished that families generally would make less wines and cordials which (as alcohol will be generated in, in not added to them) only tend to create an appetite for something stronger, and so lead to drunkenness and roine-and would put up preparations of fruit juices equally palatable and less injurious to health and morals.

The following is a tried and approved recipe for preparing:

Raspberry Vinegar.—Put two quarts of ripe, freshraspberries into a stone or glazed vessel (whose glazing will not be affected by acids) and pour on them a quart of good vinegar. Let it stand twenty-four hours, and then strain out the juice and vinegar. To each pint of this, add a pound of pulverized white sugar, and put it into a porcelain kettle to boil smartly for about half an hour, removing all the seum as it rises. When cold, bottle and seal.
