DAILY POST.

The Case of Surgeon Hays. Surgeon D. S. Hays, of the 110th regiment of Pennsylvania Volunteers, who three hundred and twenty-five wounded men in the cars at Washington all night, has published a card, in which he states that he had been with these men for five days and nights, with little or no sleep or rest, that he reached Washington with them between 9 and 10 o'clock at night, a stranger in a strange city, and failing to find any arrangements for their reception, although he had twice telegraphed his approach to the Surgeon General, and being mable to find him, was induced by his assistants to go to a hotel and take a few hours rest at 4 o'clock in the morning.

His card concludes as follows:

After making every search in my power all in their power to make the poor fellows under my charge comfortable as possible and vicinity. They state that there are under the circumstances. Many were then being taken to the churches and houses that had been so generously opened for them. They were made as comfortable as it was in my power that night to make them. Before the Surgeon General was at his office in the morning I was there to make my report and receive my orders. Immediately upon making my report and receive my orders, (which to me appeared at the surgeon General was telegraphed of their coming—my orders from the Surgeon General was telegraphed of their coming—my orders from the Surgeon General was telegraphed of their coming—my orders from the Surgeon General was telegraphed of their coming—my orders from the Surgeon General was telegraphed of their coming—my orders from the Surgeon General was telegraphed of their coming—my orders from the Surgeon General was telegraphed of their coming—my orders from the Surgeon General was telegraphed of their coming—my orders from the Surgeon General was telegraphed of their coming—my orders from the Surgeon General was telegraphed of their some of the seskirmishes.

This morning (Monday) charges were preferred against me by the Medical Director and Surgeon General, (without notifying me of the fact,) alleging gross neglect of duty; and the Secretary of War ordered my name struck from the rolls, without allowing me to make either argument or defense. A number of refugees from texas have arrived at New York on the Oeean Queen.

the battle of Port Republic, among others the following:

"The Eighty-fourth Pennsylvania, which held the extreme left, supported by the 110th Pennsylvania, took into the field about two hundred men, of whom nearly fifty were killed or wounded. Major Barret, son of Judge Barrett, of your State, commanded the regiment, and won for himself the high honor of receiving the personal thanks from his General. The first shots fired grazed Major B's coat, and carried some of the cloth away. The balance of his coat is full of holes, as is also the pummel of hissaddle. The Eighty-fourth is at present without any field officers with the exception of the Major. Col. Murray was killed at the first battle of Winchester, and Lieut. Colonel McDowell resigned before the fight at Front Royal—Major Barrett has gone to Harrisburg to see Governor Curtin, and have him appoint a man to the Coloneley. Major B. should be promoted to the Lieutenant Colonelcy, for he has now been in three fights, in two of which he has commanded the regiment, and has always been highly complimented.

FROM WASHINGTON.

A correspondent says that the emancipation bill, in the form in which it has passed the House, is very nearly a nullity. passed the House, is very nearly a nullity. It cannot be enforced as against rebels except so far as the arm of Federal government may reach. It will, however, most the demands of constituencies at home, where it will be considered as the death blow to slavery. It will also have the effect to disconcert Union men in the seceeded states, and, perhaps, to protract the war, instead of bringing it to a speedy end. It remains to be seen, however, and. It remains to be seen, however, whether the Senate will consider the bill safficiently radical to be of any use. It may be defeated in that body by the radical republicans, in the hope that a more stringent measure may be passed at the next session.

"I have not said much of the 110th Pennsylvania, for it needed no praise of mine. It won imperishable honors on that memorable day, and Pennsylvania may well be proud of it and its gallant commander. Every one accords to Col. W. D. Lewis the high qualities of a noble leader and a brave soldier. He was always at the head of his men, cheering them on, and praising them for their steadiness and valor. I do not know how many men he lost, but it is thought that the number is not very large."

I take leave to assure you that the information on which Mr. Davis acted was incorrect—the threat unnecessary, as it would have been unheard had my judgment determined any given course of action necessary and just. Major Van Benthuysen, an officer holding a commission against the United States, in arms, was arrested by myorder, for aiding the escape of a scoundrel and spy, who had at the same time been false to your party as he was to mine, and confined in Fort Jackson, and told that as his offense was not the worst in the rebellion, if he would produce the spy, who, I was informed, was under his control, he would be released, and so far his offense condoned. Being afterwards assured that the spy had escaptory large."
