Suspicious.

A gentleman of this city left with us vesterday a small pocket book, belonging to a well known editor in a neighboring to a well known editor in a neighboring village. It contains some dead head tickets, due bills payable in board at hotels, receipts, &c., valuable only to the owner. The fact that it contained "nary vicissitudes of a soldier's life, he shared alike with his command. His whole soul was in his country's cause; his one idea to save it and on the shrine of the natriot. red' failed to provoke the slightest sus-picion that there had been any foul play, as the owner has never been accused of

The pocket book was found upon the roof of a house, which redered it doubtful it has been sent to his family at Pitts-burgh, of which place he was a native. astonish our citizens by some Blondin Though a lawyer by profession, at the first soot, preparatory to the poor but honest occupation of chimney sweep. The whole affair is mysterious: we want information, and doubtless, the editor closed last evening. The Smithfield street wants his pocket book. He certainly can. wants his pocket book. He certainly cannot attend the Republican Convention on the occasion, but there was the 17th of July, unless he gets it. as it contains his only pass.

The Louisville Journal contains the offi-S. Negley, describing his expedition to Chattanooga, Tenn., which we publish:
HEADQUARTERS UNITED STATES FORCES, REFORE?
Brigadier General J. S. Negley, commanding Division United States for Commanding Division United States ing Division United States Forces: Six:—I have the honor to report that the forces under my command continued their march over the Cumberland Mountains, arriving before Chattanooga on the 7th, after a long and tedious murch. After a short rest, in accordance with your order, my command was thrown forward to reconnoitre in force. We found the enemy on the opposite side of the Tennes see river, well intrenched behind earth works, close to the river bank and on the top of the hill, preparing to dispute our crossing the river at this point. The artillery, under command of Lieu

Sypher, First Ohio, and Lieut. Nell, First ntucky, was placed in position: also the Seventy ninth Pennsylvania volunteers, Major Mellinger commanding, on company and a detachment of which were thrown forward to the river bank to act as sharpshooters to pick off the enemy's gunners, the balance of the regiment being elapsed before the infantry of the enemy opened fire upon our advance; immediately afterwards, their batteries opened upon us with one 24-pounder, one 18-pounder, and four small pieces of ordnance.

Our batteries promptly returned their fire, and the cannonading was kept up briskly for five hours, silencing their batteries, causing them to beat a hasty retreat and to evacuate the town, taking with them their commissary stores, and destroying in their light two railroad bridges. &c.

From sources which appear reliable the enemy's loss was one hundred killed and wounded, and eighteen prisoners taken on this side of the river.

Wednesday, early in the morning, leaving for the right wing. The extreme right is the position assigned to the Reserve Corps, and they will hold Mechanicsville and the line of the Chichahominy to New Bridge. No body of troops in the army are superior to the Pennsylvania Reserves. Excellent health, strict discipline, and a complete armament, qualify them, under the lead of their gallant General, to meet any number of troops the enemy can bring into the field. Experienced officers are in command of all the regiments and companies, and the whole division is capable, if necessary, of reproduciny the gallantry

I have to report one man wounded of the Seventy-ninth Pennsylvania Volunteers, as the only casuality that occurred. We renewed the cannonading on the Pa., we were much pleased to notice quite sth, which was kept up for three hours, a flattering encomium on our fellow-towns-

THE ANDREWS PATENT PIPE. (PATENTED JANUARY 21, 1862.)

PATENTED JANUARY 21, 1862.)

REQUIRES ONLY A TRIAL TO prove its incomparable superiority to any pipe now in use. It may be smoked without any deterious or unpleasant effects, as the oil of to-bacco is not drawn into the mouth, and the tongue does not become furred or coated from inhaing its poisonous properties. The bowl is made of the finest Devonshire clay, and gives to the to-bacco cannot become moiet, as in ordinary Pipes, because the drip beneath receives the saliva that insensibly escapes into the stem: hence the pipe onever becomes offensively rank, and the breath of the smoker does not proclaim to every one he meets that he has been "indulging in a pipe."

When the bowl becomes clogged, or the drip beneath requires cleansing, the pipe may be taken apart by removing the rim. The clay bowl may at any time be re-tored to its original whiteness by burning in the fire, (first drying it thoroughly) or a new bowl may be procured of the dealer:
