PHILADELPHIA, August 12, 1862.

Dr. C. M. Jackson—Dear Sir. While in Virginia, owing to the change of water, I was taken with a severe diarrole, which seemed incurable, and which greatly weakened me. When we reached Martinsburg, I feared I should have to come home; but noticing some of your Bitters in the store Mr. H. H. Price, in that town, I purchased a supply, and on taking it was speedily restored to health. The diarrhora was quickly checked, and I experienced no feturn of it. A number of my comrades, who suffered in the same nanner and from the same cause, with whom I shared the Bitters, join me in this certificate. I expect to return to the seat of war with the Legion, and shall certainly take a supply of the Bitters in my knapsack. I would not be without it for its weight in gold, particularly on going into a limestone region.

men who are not mad with some revolutionary project to shrink from measures that appear to threaten the integrity of State authority, and to pray that at least indestructible belief that the preservation of the State sovereignty, within its just indestructible belief that the preservation of the State sovereignty, within its just and legitimate sphere, is essential to the preservation of republican liberty. Beyond a doubt, it was this belief which led the people from the first to object, as they sometimes did unreasonably object, to the augmentation of the national powers. Perhaps they ended not always explain— Perhaps they could not always explain— perhaps they did not always fully under-stand—all the grounds of this conviction. It has been, as it were, an instinct: and for one, I hope that instinct is as active and vigilant this day as I am sure it was
