WEDNESDAY MORNING, JULY 16.

A Pretty Sharp Retort.

Two young ladies were riding in an omnibus. One of them, with features remarkable for a prominence of nose, evhibited to the other a daguerreotype of herself, and they were engaged in discussing its merits, when an elderly lady got in. After awhile she reached out her hand, and said to the lady with the picture:

"Please let me look at it?"

Her modest request was met with an indignant, "It's none of your business."

The old lady settled back in her seat very complacently, when the companion of the one with the picture asked:

"What do you wish to do with it?"

"Oh, nothing," replied the old lady; "I only wanted to see how successfully the artist has put such a nose on so small a plate."

ONE of the characters in which the late Charles Matthews used to delight his audience during his "At Home," was that of an old Scotch lady, who was in the habit of inculcating the duties of charity into her grandchildren after the following fashion: "My dears, when I and your father and mother have finished our meals: when you have eaten as much as you conveniently can; and when you have gorged the pig, the three cats and the parrot—then, my dear children, remember the poor."

A FARMER, having made his fortune, moved into the city to enjoy it, but his old love clung to him, and he indulged in a small way in the agristic pursuit. Visiting his friends in the country, and relating his experience in city farming, he said:—"I put outside my window a large box, filled it with mold, and sowed it with seed. What do you think came up?" "Wheat, barley, or oats?" "No, a policeman, who ordered me to remove it."
