MONDAY MORNING, JULY 21.

Maine.

At a meeting in Portland, on Saturday evening, Brig. Gen. Howard, who was temporarily disabled by a wound received in the battle of Fair Oaks, made a speech, in which he said:

"My Friends—Much has been said in regard to the General entrusted with the command there—much adulation and much abuse. I believe in my heart that Gen. McClellan is worthy to be trusted. You can trust him, but you must submerge political parties, however, in the good of the country. You sent me forth to one of your institutions without any special politics, except love of country. When we shall have shed a little more blood, we shall learn to live more in accordance with the spirit of our fathers. I know that I am no worshipper of men.—I do not believe that General McClellan has passed through the campaign thus far without a mistake, but for one I trust him and urge you to. Trust him not as a god, but as a General! He has shown at every movement great ability and caution: too much so, perhaps, for some, who are inclined to doubt him, but whether so or not is to be tested by results. I hope we don't need the instruction of another Bull Run to teach us that it is best to be cautious.—It is best to be. The old men say so. And when you find a young man combining ability with caution, you may trust him, for you have there the sprightness of youth combined with the consideration and reflection of age."

Hon. I. D. M. Sweat offered a resolution of confidence in the honor, courage, patient and unselfish devotion to the cause of our country and the preservation of constitutional liberty, of Geo. B. M'Clellan, and in his military genius and ability to lead our armies to an undoubted and glorious victory over the combined forces of the rebels, South, and all others who are conspiring, directly or indirectly, to the overthrow of our Government. This resolution passed without a dissenting voice.

The Woonsocket (R. I.) Patriot says that apples are falling from the trees just now, in great quantities. The prospects of a large crop, so promising a month or two ago, is rapidly diminishing. Some orchards are already divested of fruit.
