

The Union as it was: The Constitution as it is!

SAURDAY MORNING, JULY 26. Reading matter every page.

Democratic State Ticket.

AUDITOR GENERAL, ISAAC MENKNER, Union County. SURVEYOR GENERAL, JAMES P. BARR, Allegheny County.

THE RADICALS ON THE WAR.

From the beginning of the rebellion until the close of the last Congress it was palpably apparent that the only interest felt by the radicals in the prosecution of hostilities was confined exclusively to the freedom of the slaves. It is true that these partisans in Congress voted, with but two exceptions, for a resolution offered by Mr. Critchfield, declaring the purpose of the Government to be simply the restoration of the Union; and soon after it became evident that they had no such intention, and at the late session this same resolution was offered by the Union side of the House and defeated by the very votes which passed upon the record, declaring that this war is not for the restoration of the Union.

LOYALTY AND DILOALTY.

We have no desire to inflict upon our readers a dissertation on this intricate theme. We recognize no standard of loyalty—obedience to the Constitution and the constituted authorities in the exercise of the powers delegated to them by the fundamental law of the land. Loyalty in the citizen of the government differs utterly from loyalty in the subject of a monarchy. In our country the allegiance of the citizen is to the people of the country, and not to any person or public officers of our courts, take an oath to maintain and defend the Constitution of the United States. In England and other monarchial countries such an oath is taken by the citizen to the monarch, and not to the people of the country.

Since the beginning of our disastrous troubles many strange and varying standards of loyalty have been set up. Some are told that every man who does his duty as a citizen is a loyalist. Others are told that every man who does his duty as a citizen and who is a member of the Union is a loyalist. Others are told that every man who does his duty as a citizen and who is a member of the Union and who is a member of the Union is a loyalist.

WHAT IT COSTS.

Putting down the Slaveholder's Rebellion is a very expensive as well as bloody business. Congress, at its recent session, passed bills which, in the aggregate, appropriated out of the Treasury the sum of $298,078,627 62. At the Extra Session, $296,108,296 99. The total amount, therefore, for the two sessions reaches the enormous sum of $1,118,182,924 61. Nearly all of this vast outlay was rendered unnecessary by the rebellion. At the recent session, the Army bill alone appropriated a sum of $298,078,627 62. This was more than enough to cover the entire cost of the rebellion.

VERY TRUE.

Honore Greely, in discussing the mileage question with a member of Congress, Cyrus Alden, says: It is important that you should be in the next Congress should be Republican. It is further important that it should be a man of the name of Greely. It is further important that it should be a man of the name of Greely. It is further important that it should be a man of the name of Greely.

ARMY CORRESPONDENCE.

HEADQUARTERS, 17th REG'T, 25th INF'Y, July 24, 1862. Dear Post—Breakers are an incubus upon society at any time, but in these perilous times a diabolical course to the cause of the Union is being pursued. The President's moonlight review of our army had a most happy effect. Many of our Executive and Commanding officers were in the support of the President's action, and many of our participants in the review were in the support of the President's action.
