FRIDAY MORNING, AUGUST 8

Extraordinary Crime and Suicide of a Woman.

A most melancholy affair occurred in the vicinity of Redwood on week before last. The wife of one of the most respectable and wealthy farmers of that locality was caught in the act of stealing goods from Mr. M'Allister's store, Redwood, and on investigation it was found that from a long system of thieving the woman had accumulated a fair sized stock for a country store. She ingeniously secreted her captures. It was said, whose pieces of calico and cotton goods, a number of shawls, staves, hoop skirts, a half bushel of spool thread, a peck of pins, buttons, scissors, and in fact everything which comes within the category of women's needs. It was before that the woman had been pursuing her occupation for ten years, and meanwhile was an active, zealous and respected member of the church. When the poor and unfortunate woman heard that the thefts had come to ferret out her transgressions, she took a dose of corrosive sublimate, and thus ended her life of virtue and crimes. No members of her family were accused of being principals in or having any knowledge of her acts of theft. She had in her dress a long pocket, which contained shawls and under hoops, and here she was enabled to deposite, without detection all her long line of robberies.

This misled woman was the wife of Jonathan Hayes.—Watertown (N. Y.) Journal.
