Ben Blowhard says that one of his voy ages was made under a captain who wa noted for working his crew; and on the trip home, having nothing else to do, h kept all hands to work "setting up rigging." an operation which is done by tightening the standing rigging which sup ports the vessel's mast. "Well." says old Ben, "it was nothing but setting riggin almost every day till we have in sight of land. We were bound for London, and just as we were passing the North Foreland, we grounded in free lathom. Then the captain ripped and swore till be was blue. "Heave the lead, says he. He have first on he stab'ard and then on the lab'ard side. There she only drawed eighteen! I guess our boys laughed some when they found that we had set up the riggin's o much that we'd hauled her mast through the vessel's bottom twelve teet!" THE Santé Fe Republican has been suppressed, and its editor. Mr. Holmes, the Secretary of the Territory, imprisoned. The publication of the paper will be temporarily removed to Kanzas City. I guess our boys laughed some when they found that we had set up the riggin's on much that we'd hauled her mast through the vessel's bot- tom twelve teet!" The Santá Fe Republican has been sup- pressed, and its editor, Mr. Holmes, the Secretary of the Territory, imprisoned. The publication of the paper will be tem- porarily removed to Kansas City. The cause for the suppression is the alleged publication of military matters of benefit to the enemy, in an article on New Mexi- can foris, "all of which," in the words of the specifications, "by depreciating the strength and value of the intrenchments at Fort Union is calculated to impair the com- fidence of the Union troops and people of New Mexico in the strength of said works; suggests and invites attack by the enemy, and directly indicates the work of sa	 The but such as the ample to be described on the image fits and the made in lots or not less the solution of the set per week for all contracts of 560 sets and to 1000 to 2000 sets.
