PHILADELPHIA, August 9, 1862. WEDNESDAY MORNING, AUG. 10.

Reading matter on every page. THE CONVENTION TO-DAY. The Democratic Convention assembled at the Court House this morning at 11 o'clock to nominate candidates for Congress, State Senate, Legislature and county officers.

DANGEROUS TEACHINGS. A greater calamity than the monster treason with which our government is now struggling is that of division and violence here among ourselves.

We have already had, in several localities, labor riots, which have occurred between some white and colored people, because of the latter having supplanted the other in some branches of employment.

NO HOPE FOR FOREIGN INTERVENTION.

The Southern journals are beginning to despair of intervention on the part of England in our present civil war. We have been under the impression from the commencement of hostilities that England's policy and interest were to let us go on as we are, and we perceive that some of the Southern papers are coming to that conclusion also.

"It is the interest of Great Britain that this war shall go on until the North is overwhelmed with debt and taxation, and thoroughly exhausted of men, capital, and materials for conducting a successful rivalry in manufactures and commerce; and until, also, the South shall be everywhere overrun, her slaves taken off, her labor system completely overturned, and all the circumstances which gave the South a monopoly of the cotton culture shall be destroyed.

The talk about her starting operations is the silly cant of women and clergymen. England could better afford to support the North, than to support the South. Five millions of her operatives started to work, rather than to see the civil dissensions of this country heated up, and its affairs embroiled again in the career of profligacy in which they were moving two years ago.

The citizens of Prussia, Georgia, are leaving the county in large numbers, and all yesterday afternoon wagons and other vehicles, heavily loaded, were arriving in Petersburg.

Escape of Union Prisoners.

From the Richmond Examiner, August 5. Besides Lieut. B. Masters of one of the New York regiments, who has escaped from the prison in Light Street, by some unexplained means, Lieut. W. B. Masters, another officer, who escaped from the prison in Light Street, by some unexplained means, Lieut. W. B. Masters, another officer, who escaped from the prison in Light Street, by some unexplained means.

WENDELL PHILLIPS.

We should infer from a leading editorial article in Monday's Philadelphia Press that the government is beginning to consider the propriety of muzzling that fiery agitator, Wendell Phillips. The Press, in disparaging its denunciation of him, calls him "a traitor in his soul," equally as vile as Jeff. Davis himself.

What strength, what dignity has the Republic of America, which can permit traitors to assail its frontiers, while traitors in Richmond sell it from the battle field? It sends men to Fort Warren for attacking the Government and disrupting the army, and yet it permits men in Boston—men of smooth speech and choice words and eloquent phrases—to give the fact that they disavowed their allegiance to the country of their birth, and at the same time sought to divide and destroy it.

SOUTHERN NEWS.

From the Richmond Dispatch, August 5. Lieutenant Colonel George Smith, commanding the 1st Regiment of Virginia Cavalry, now on picket near White Oak Swamp, having learned on Sunday that the enemy was occupying Forge's Bridge, set towards that point a small scouting party, under command of Lieut. Tichenor, of Richmond. The Lieutenant acted as far as the bridge, bringing back with him two prisoners. The Yankees had left the bridge on Friday last. The pickets also captured one prisoner the same day. They were all brought to Richmond yesterday, and handed over to Gen. Winler.

From the Richmond Examiner, August 6. The Petersburg Express says, it is reported that the enemy landed in a large force on Saturday night on the South side of the James river, one column disembarking at Maycho's and the other at a point a few miles below. Maycho's is about seven miles below City Point. The forces of the enemy comprise infantry, artillery, and cavalry, and are variously estimated at between 4,000 and 10,000.
