We now have before us the Philadelphia Press, containing what it styles "a complete and accurate report of the speech complained of." The Press, in publishing this address, italicises the most significant portions of it, the following being the precise sentences which caused the speaker's arrest: "I say further, fellow-citizens, that a now governs us never was in the United several townships in this county which

Mr. Ingersoll furnished by a most bitter personal opponent-the editor of the Press-and another willing witness, who volunteers an affidavit for his arrest; and, proved. Is there any government on earth which, in time of crushing and stupendous war, ever exhibited so much corraption, in the same time, as the Investigating Committee, last winter, in Con press, proved upon its own members? If States for a quarter of a century- the forenoon. the compeer of such patriots as Webter, Clay, Benton and Wright-even he, who was considered above suspicion, could not resist the temptation of city, it will afford me pleasure to serve my fellow-citiz us in any conscitution of gorging off of the very agony of his country. What is more striking still, in this connection, is the failure of the Senate to investigate his case for fear of the investigation being extended to quite a number of his colleagues. And Mr. Ingersoll, for alluding to these notorious facts, is arrested
