JOSEPH E. McCABE

War Meeting. The intelligence from East and West yesterday created a very general uneasiness in the city, and some of our mos sedate citizens began to fear that the enemy might penetrate to Pennsylvania, and to talk of precautionary measures. Not knowing what might be necessary in the emergency, a meeting of the old Commit-tee of Public Safety was called. But a few, however, were in attendance, and the only business transacted was the appointment of a committee, with Ex-Governor Wm. F. Johnston as chairman, to report business to an adjourned meeting, to be held at the Board of Trade Rooms, at 9 o'clock this morning. The Mayor also became impressed with the necessity of prompt action, and issued the following:

"Owing to the threatening aspect of affords and the threatening aspect of affords a specific and the threatening aspect of a specific and the specific and the specific and threatening aspect of a specific and threatening aspect of a specific and threatening aspect and threatening aspect of a specific and threatening aspect of a specific and threatening aspect and threa fairs, and not knowing what moment our ted for Congress, viz: Captain Jacob 1, therefore, request the citizens to assemble, en masse, at the Court House, on Friday, the 5th inst., at 11 o'clock A. M., to take such measures as will ensure the safety of the people.

"B. C. SAWYER, Mayor." The proclamation of Governor Cartin, recommending the organization of volunteer companies, increased the excitement in the atternoon, but few felt any real ap-prehension. Precautionary measures do. however, seem imperatively necessary, and we hope to see a full attendance of citizens at the meeting this morning, to take some wise, united and decisive action.

The Quota of Allegheny County. Hon. J. P. Sterrett and David Reed. Esq., returned from Harrisburg yesterday.
The latter gentleman brought with him the official list of quotas of several Western counties, as fixed by Hon. A. K. re, Superintendent of the draft in McDiare, Superintendent of the draft in this State. Allegheny county's apportionment, under all the calls since the three months' men, is 10,503; Beaver, 2,725; Butler, 1,986; Armstrong, 2,174; Fayette, 2,263; Greene, 1,436; Lawrence, 1,266; Marcer, 2,188; Washington, 2,783; within twenty days. The proper papers of the regiment of the regiment of the regiment of the regiment of the regiment.

It will gratify many of our readers to know that the establishment of the quota of Allegheny county renders it pretty certain that no draft will be required here. Returns from fifteen townships and seven boroughs at the Marshal's office show 2,199 enlistments, which would give, if the same average were carried out for the forty townships and fifteen boroughs, 5,452, exclusive of the cities. Three wards of Pittsburgh give 1,141 or 3,423 for the whole city, and if Allegheny's proportion holds out the same we have 1,521. The sum total of all would therefore be 10,396—leaving, under the necessarily incomplete enrollment of the know that have a considered and all the city. The sum total of all would therefore be 10,396—leaving, under the necessarily incomplete enrollment of the regiment can go to work at once.

That Circus.

Thayer, Noves & Co.'s excellent circus was again crowded last night, and all were highly pleased. The whole performance is good. Mr. Robinson's bare-back riding is wonderful, as is also the double-trapeze performance. The posturing and backbed ducated mules roars of laughter. The clowns were funny, and their jokes and songs good. We have not seen so fine a circus, of the old-fashioned sort, for many years, and advise all to see it this after-It will gratify many of our readers to therefore be 10.396—leaving, under the necessarily incomplete enrollment of the officials, but two hundred to provide. To omake these up we have a cavalry regiment organizing here, and the ball has been set in motion for a Corcoran regiment, both by special authority. The number recruited for old regiments and for these two regiments, since the enrollment, will more than make up for all errors and deficiencies, and leave us with an excess to our credit on the books of the State. We can safely say now that we are "out of the woods," and that no draft will be neces-

There is nothing more desirable or acceptable is the winter season than well kept fruit, a ch as peaches, pears, plums, Ac. Numerous inventions for preserving these luxuries have been tried, and many have been successful; but we have seen have been successful; but we have seen none more simple and effectual than a glass frait jar, patented by J. C. Baker, August 14th, 1860. It has been tried for two seasons by many families, and found two seasons by many families, and found ascension this afternoon, between four to keep any fruit as fresh and perfect as when first put up. We yesterday saw a quart of peaches in one of these jars, put up two years since—still perfectly air tight, the peaches firm and sweet, and the surrounding surpage glear as when first put in the Ni surrounding syrup as clear as when first poured over. The jar is of glass, with slats on each side the neck, over which is fitted a pressed tin cover, with a gum gas-ket inside, the whole held down by an iron bow catching on the slats. These capital ars are manufactured by Messrs. Phillips & Best, and can be had at their works, Second street. We commend them to house keepers for efficiency and economy.

Way General McClellan

Since four o'clock to-day, and up to the time of meeting, the city has been filled with stories of dissensions and changes in the Cabinet. One rumor has it that Mr. Secretary Stanton has resigned, and his place has been assigned to General Halleck; while General MeClellan is to be the Commander-in-Chief of all the armies of the Union. But a careful inquiry reveals nothing of the sort as yet consummated, and the present status of affairs eems to be this: On Monday afternoon President Lin coln and General McClellan, in company called upon General Halleck at his head quarters, and a long interview ensued, lasting until after dark, and resulted in an arrangement upon which was based a "general order," as follows: GENERAL ORDER-NO. 122. WAR DEPARTMENT, Adjutant General's Office, Washington, Sept. 2.

Major-General McClellan will have command of the fortifications of Washington and of all the troops for the defense of the capital. By command of Major Gen. HALLECK. E. D. Townsend, A. A. G.

As the armies under Generals Pope and Burnside are now called to the defense of the capital, this order gives Gen. McCleltan supreme command of all our armies now in the vicinity of Washington, and, in fact, in Virginia. A part of the Cabinet—viz: Messrs. Stanton, Welles, Smith, Bates and Chees—viz represented to the Bates and Chase—are represented to have objected to this arrangement, while Mr. Blair sustained the President and General Halleck. Mr. Seward was absent from the city; but from his universal former support of General McClellan, it was known that he would, if here, still sustain the action of the President. Consequently a Cabinet meeting was called at noon, at which every member except Mr. Seward was present. What was done of course is not known, but it is certain that when the meeting adjourned, at 4 o'clock P. M., the Cabinet were a unit in favor of the President's action. A rumor, which may or may not be true, is afloat as to the way in which this most important Cabinet meeting came to be held. I give the story for what it is worth, neither crediting or discrediting it, but simply asserting that it came te me from a source which I have been in the habit of crediting. The story is as follows:—

On Tuesday, after the interview between the President and Generals Halleck and that it had reference to our present condi-tion. The Government, it is apparent to every one, is exerting every energy for the city's defense. It may be sately re-ported there is no panic here; but of course there is naturally a generally expressed solicitude regarding the future.

The Enthusiasm for McClellan. BALTINORE, Sept. 3.—The American, of this city, publishes the following special dispatch in its evening edition:

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3:-The effect on the army on hearing of the appointment

the troops and fortifications on the other side of the river: This duty occupied him until after midnight last night.

His reception by the officers and soldiers was marked by the most unbounded enthusiasm. In every camp his arrival was greeted by hearty and prolonged cheering, and manifestations of wildest delight. Many of the soldiers who fought under him in the hardest battles of the war, wept with joy at having again for under him in the hardest battles of the war, wept with joy at having again for their commander one upon whom they could place implicit reliance. Already his hurried visit to the camps

Already his hurried visit to the camps has brought a remarkable change in the soldiers. His presence seemed to act magically upon them; despondency is replaced by confidence, and all are glad that McClellan will hereafter direct them.

The General has been busy in perfecting the organization of the army, and preparing it for the duties to be assigned. He has easily resumed his old habits, and spends most of the time day and night among the camps and forts.

The abolitionists try to comfort themselves with the belief that Gen. McClellan's command is only over troops within selves with the benefit that Gen. McClei-lan's command is only over troops within the fortifications about this city, but it is certain that he commands all the troops in this section of the country. Yesterday Gen. Halleck was at Gen. McClellan's quarters for a long time, and subsequently the latter proceeded to join the army.—

This now consists of vetrans for the most part, and a little time for reorganization and for the designation of some new general officers, will make it so formidable a force, in conjunction with the normal force, in conjunction with the new regiments now here, as to render it doubtful whether the rebels will dare to advance

On Tuesday, after the interview between the President and Generals Halleck and McClellan, the Secretary of War address ed a note to the President remonstrating sagainst the arrsngement arrived at, and intimating that if the facts were as stated, he (the Secretary) would feel compelled to resign. To this letter the President replied, stating that the exigencies of the times required the arrangement, suggesting that if the Secretary felt disposed to resign he would feel constrained to accept the resignation. This note called for the resignation. This note called for the resignation of the Secretary or the endorsement of the order, and the Cabinet meeting was called for the purpose of filling the vacancy if it occurred.

There is only one fact which shakes my faith in the truth of the latter version of the affair, and that is the one that Mr. Stanton was present at the meeting of the Cabinet.

The Cabinet meeting of to-day was long continued, and the guess is no doubt true that it had reference to our present conditions and the captures of t

Movements of Gen. McClellan.

Washington, Sept. 3, 1862.

Immediately after accepting the chief command of all the Union forces in Virginia and the neighborhood of Washington, Gen. McClellan proceeded to inspect the troops and fortifications on the other side of the river: This duty occupied him until after midnight last night.

His reception by the officers and soldiers was marked by the most unbounded enthusiasm.
