Although not disposed to favor or recommend Patent Medicines in general, through distrust of their ingredients and effects: I yet know of no sufficient reason why a man may not testify to the benefit he believes himself to have received from any simple preparation in the hope that he may thus contribute to the benefit of others.

I do this the more readily in regard to Hoofland's German Bitters, prepared by Dr. C. M. Jackson, of this city, because I was prejudiced against them for many years, under the impression that they were chiefly an alcoholic mixture, I am indebted to my friend Robert Shoemaker, Esq., for the removal of this prejudice by propercests, and for enceuragement to try them, when suffering from great and long continued debility. The use of three bottles of these Bitters, at the beginning of the present year, was followed by evident relief, and restoration to a degree of podily and mental vigor which I had not felt for ix months before, and had almost depaired of revining. I therefore thank God and my friend for it. Stephen Mental Mental Stephen Mental Stephen Mental Stephen M. NEWTON BROWN.

Dr. C. M. Jackson Sir.—It gave me pleasure, wo years ago, to give you a certificate, testifying nat the German Bitters had done for me. I am ow perfectly cured of all those diseases your redictine professes to cure, vis. Dyspepsia, Chronic and Nervous debility, disease of the Kidneys, to... The powerful influence it exerts upon Narvous prostration is surprising. I have been consulted frequently in reference to your Bitters, and without hesitation, have recommended it for the above complaints, and in every instance it has effectually cured. Your medicine has a great reputation in Germantown, and is sold in every Drug Store, and in most of the Grocery stores here. If any one should question what I say, let them come to Germantown, and I will prove to their satisfaction, that the Bitters have cured in this vicinity more than twenty case of the above diregaes.

DR. C. M. JACKSOR—Dear Sir: While in Virginia, owing to the change of water, I was taken with a severe diarrheea, which seemed incurable, and which greatly weakened me When we eached Markinsburg, I feared I should have to ome home; but noticing some of your Bitters in he store Mr. H. H. Price, in that town, I purhased a supply, and on taking it was speedily restored to health. The diarrheea was quickly checked, and I experienced no return of it. THE MYSTERIOUS WATCH. AN INTERESTING STORY. [Concluded.]

I sat beside my patient until he sank to sleep. He seemed to be doing well still and I had no doubt but that the morning light would see him greatly better. But west-ern hospitality would not permit of my departure at that late hour and I was ledged departure at that hat nour and I was lodged in an upper chamber upon a bed as clean and simple as it was fragrant. I slept. At midnight however, I was awakened by the news that my patient was worse. He had awakened in mortal agony. Some in ward injury, impossible to discover, had done its work. I said nothing of hope now, and the dying man looked at me with a phastry rmile. ghastiv rmile.

Take the watch. " he said. " Watch it and me; you will find me right."

These were the last words he uttered. he muttered incoherently after this, tossed his arms about, and struggled for his breath. At last he seemed to sink into a slumber. My hand was on his heart.—
I felt its beatings grow faint, fainter, still. At last there was no motion. He was dead. I lifted the watch to my earthat had stoped also!
There were tears in the eyes of the rough men about me, and the woman wept as she might for one of her own kindred.

I could do no good now, and I turned away, leaving the watch upon the coverlid, but one of the men came after me.

"He give it to you," he said, "and it's your'n. He had no person belongin to him, so you needn't be afeerd to take it. He must hev taken a likin' to you, for he thought a heap of it. Take it, doctor."— And so the watch was mine.
It was dumb and motionless, and it re nained so. I took it to a watchmaker, and he laughed at the idea of its ever going again. This was after 1 had left the West and dwelt in a large and populous city in the Eastern States, some eight or nine months after poor Mike Barlow's death. The watchmaker only confirmed my own suspicions. It was a strange co-incidence that it should last exactly its master's lifetime, but that was all. So I mag it upon my chamber-wall,a mement se days of toil and struggle in the

It did not stop again. I heard the soft, dear wick, tick, tick, all day, and when I awakened in the night. Once or twice it beat more rapidly than usual, and always before peril-the first time when a fever threatened me; the second as I stood upon a broken bridge, which was swept away one hour afterwards; and at other mo-ments which I have forgotten, but which served to keep alive the fancy that I loved cherish. Never was its voice so clear and soft as on that evening when I first met Rosa Grey. I loved her from the first moment, and she loved me in return. We had neither of us any friends to interfere, had neither of us any friends to interfere, for she was an orphan, brotherless and for she was an orphan, brotherless and sixterless; and so, after a brief courtship, we were married.

I had no secrets from my wife, and in a little while she learned the story of the watch. She had faith in it, and thought or fancied that she could detect the very shades of difference in its utterance. When shades of difference in its utterance. When I was weary she said the watch was weary State Room Berths, meals served at separate to too; when I was glad it had a joyous echo. I know that on that night when a feeble breath fluttered in a feebler frame, and the little creature to whom our love had given existence struggled vainty for its life, there was a piteous cadence in the voice of that old watch I hope never to hear again.

So we lived on together. It was God's will that we should be childless, but we loved each other all the more. I grew rich and prosperous, and our only grief was the missing of those baby eyes and voices which we had hoped to have about our hearth.

It was my fortieth birthday—I never shall forget that day—when the watch began its warning, My wife and I heard it at one moment. Never before had the voice of that watch been so loud or rapid. All day long, all the next, and all the next, that warning continued. The pulse within it shook the table on which it rested, when I drew it from my pocket, and made the garments on my bosom rise and fall when I replaced it. Were we threatened with illness? No! her cheek was blooming, and my pulse was regular. What could it mean!

After four days I begen to laugh at my own credulity, and even Rosa began to lose her faith in the monitor. About noon I left her and went into a little room whore own credulity, and even Rosa began to lose her faith in the monitor. About noon I left her, and went into a little room where kept my medical works and some rare and my movements were constrained; but it did not seem as though that were any affair of mine. Hunger at last awake me; the animal aroused the mental, and I began to wonder where I had been, and where I had was. I put up my hand as well as I could. There was a low roof over my head, folds of muslin lay about me, something upon my breast emitted a sickly fragrance—a bunch of flowers ted a sickly fragrance—a bunch of flowers seeming half withered. I knew this by the touch. What was the matter with me? Why could I not breathe freely? Was I was GOODS; NEW GOODS!! Why could I not breathe freely. Was I blind or deaf, that I could not see nor hear? Suddenly the truth disabled across me; I had been buried alive!—I lay in my coffin!

And all this time you ask, where was my wife? how had she borne the blow which had fallen so suddenly upon her. She it was who found me senseless upon my study floor; and she it was who hoped my study noor; and she it was who hoped for returning consciousness after all others had despaired. A SWETTS INFALLIBLE LINIMENT is prepared from the recipe of Dr. Stephen Sweet, of Connecticut, the great hone setter, and has been used in his practice for the last twenty years with the most astonishing success. As an external remedy it is without a rival and will alleviate pain more speedily than any other preparatioh. For all Rheumatic and Nervous Disorders it is truly infallible, and as a cure for Sures, Woulds, Sprains, Bruises, &c., its soothing, healing, and powerful strengthening properties, excite thojust wonder and astonishment of all who have ever given it a trial. Over four hundred certificates of remarkable cures, performed by it within the last two years, attest this fact,
