

THE BATTLE OF MANASSAS.

A Rebel Account.

The Richmond Dispatch of the 22d inst. contains the following account of the late battle of Manassas:

Our information is such as to give encouragement to the hope that the soil of Virginia will soon be rescued from the hands of and divested of the polluting presence of the Yankee invader. The great battle of Saturday last, fought on the memorable and classic ground of Manassas, resulted in the overthrow of the combined armies of the Federal Government, with a loss that is perhaps unequalled in the annals of the present war. We write with particularity, but the despatches received by the President, and given to the public, warrant the belief that our triumph in complete and glorious, and that the Confederacy is thus probably to-day within halting distance of the Federal capital.

RAW OFFICERS.

Wellington once wrote from the Peninsula the following lines:

"Really, when I reflect upon the character and attainments of some of the general officers of this army, and consider that these are the persons on whom I am to rely to lead columns against the French generals, and who are to carry my instructions into execution, I tremble; and, as Lord Chesterfield said of the Generals of his day, 'if only one of them when the enemy reads the lists of their names, he trembles as I do.'"

The Invasion of Maryland.

(From the Baltimore American, September 1.)

The invasion of Maryland by the rebel army is an accomplished fact. With a force variously stated at from twenty to thirty thousand men, during Friday and Saturday they crossed the Potomac at points above and below the Point of Rocks, and pushed forward in the direction of Frederick City, taking possession of that place on Saturday about noon. The first division that crossed was under command of General Hill, and was followed by General Jackson. Our small force at Frederick, after destroying the bridges over the river, retired towards Pennsylvania. The rebels, on entering the State, have been buying cattle, horses, and paying for them in United States demand notes, and in Confederate scrip and Southern money. So far as is known, the behavior of the rebels was orderly, and they are reported to have done no damage to the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, beyond the taking up of some rails near Junction Hill, this side of the Monocacy. The main body of the rebel army is reported to have passed through Frederick on the way to Hagerstown, and declared their purpose to be to march into Pennsylvania. The attempt is so audacious that we hardly know how to give it credit. Every step in that direction takes them away from their source of military supplies, and will increase the obstacles in their way.

INVASION OF OUR STATE.

There seems a well grounded apprehension of rebel invasion of our State. Occasional, the Washington correspondent of the Philadelphia Press, says: "Before this letter appears in print one portion of the advancing column will be occupying the advancing column of the rebels."

Whatever dimensions may have existed among us heretofore, the hour has arrived for one grand, irresistible and united effort to uphold the flag of our country. The enemy, in the desperation of a bad cause, is muzzling our capital, and, at the risk of annihilation, threatening to invade our own State and city. Freedom of America, shall we stand idle as we have in the glorious old Mecca of Constitutional Liberty polluted by rebel hands? Never! To arms! To arms! is no longer the airy sign of a party, but a prompt cry of duty that throbs in every patriotic breast. Men of Philadelphia, let us not tamely by our arms, but by our honor, and by our eternal vigilance, the honor of our city, bequeathed by the men of '76. The time has come for us to sink every other consideration and interest, and rush to the rescue of our imperiled day. Men of all parties—friends of Henry and Fox, of O'Neill and Bidle, of Myers and Kline, of Kelly and Nicholson—surely we can afford to lay aside all party discussions and political preferences, in view of threatening emergencies.

COL. DAVID CAMPBELL.

By private dispatch, received yesterday afternoon, we learn that our fellow-citizen, Col. David Campbell, is a prisoner in the hands of the rebels. We have not learned any of the particulars of his capture. He was, prior to the late heavy engagements, military governor of Williamsburg, Va. Whether he was engaged in any of the late battles or not, we have not learned; but one thing we are confident of, wherever he was, he was doing his whole duty to his country, to his command, and to himself.

A BATTLE IN NORTH CAROLINA.

300 UNION MEN AGAINST 1,000 REBELS.

Rebels Thoroughly Routed.

Capture of their Commanding Officer and Forty Others.

Gallantry of Hawkins' Zouaves and Loyal North Carolinians.

Correspondence of the N. Y. Tribune, Baltimore, Sept. 8, 1862.

I have the following particulars of one of the most gallant engagements of the war, so far as our troops were concerned, from an officer of Capt. Fessenden's regiment, who has brought dispatches to Washington from his commanding officer: Four hundred rebels marched to meet us on Tuesday, Sept. 3, at a place called the Forks of the road, intending to enter the town and lay it in ashes. A native Carolinian, knowing the nature of the rebels and their quick march, reported the matter to the Hon. H. Hammill, of Hawkins' Zouaves. No time was to be lost. To defend the town there was one company (17) of Hawkins' Zouaves, one company of regularly enlisted loyal North Carolinians, with such other forces as the rebels were quick to rally. All hands were quickly armed with the fever which prevails there at this season. The rebels were quickly routed, and their commanding officer, a Lieutenant Green, of the Zouaves, who was disabled by a wound received in a former engagement, was captured. HARRISBURG, Sept. 10.—The following important order has just been made: (HARRISBURG DISPATCH BY TELEGRAPH.)

HARRISBURG, Sept. 10.—In view of the danger of invasion now threatening our State, by the advance of the Government, it is deemed necessary to call upon all the able-bodied men of Pennsylvania to organize immediately for the defense of the State, and be ready for marching orders upon one hour's notice to proceed to such points of rendezvous as the Governor may direct. It is ordered: First.—That company organizations be made in accordance with the numbers required under the laws of the United States, to wit: One captain, first lieutenant, second lieutenant, eighty privates as the minimum number, and fifty privates as the maximum standard of each company. The company officers to be elected by each organization. Second.—As the call may be sudden, it is desirable that the officers and members of each company provide themselves with the best six rounds of ammunition to suit the kind of arms in possession of the soldiers. Third.—Each officer and member of the company shall provide himself with good, stout clothing, uniform or otherwise, boots, blanket and haversack, ready to go into camp, when called into service. Fourth.—Each company organization to be perfected as soon as possible, and report the name of its officers and the place of its headquarters to the nearest headquarters, in order that they may be promptly notified to move when their services are required. Fifth.—Organization, when ordered to move, will be furnished with transportation by the Government. Sixth.—On the arrival of the place of rendezvous, the companies will be formed into regiments, and the names of the companies and their officers will be reported to the nearest headquarters. Seventh.—On the arrival of the place of rendezvous, the companies will be formed into regiments, and the names of the companies and their officers will be reported to the nearest headquarters. Eighth.—Organizations formed under the present proclamation are earnestly requested to comply without delay, and such measures as may be necessary to comply with this order. Ninth.—Organization, called into the field under this order will be held for service for such time only as the pressing exigencies of State defense may require. By Order, A. S. CANTON, Governor and Commander-in-Chief of Pennsylvania.

I regret to say that an important screw is loose among the military operations of the rebels in this department.
