Pennsylvania's Deficiency. Full returns made to the military bureau at Harrisburg show that by the late enrollment the deficiency of Pennsylvania under the last two calls of the President was 51,511, minus the number enrolled by the several commissioners as having volunteered since the order. This will reduce the number very considerably and also the credits claimed by thickly populated distrcts, such as Philadelphia and Allegheny counties, for such of the floating population as could not be included in the enrollment. The deficiency in the several countries of the ment. The deficiency in the several counties is as follows:

Also, of the two wells being struck on the Tarr Farm, flowing three hundred and fifty bbls per day. We have no particulars, however. Altogether, the business seems to be in a healthy state, and the prospect fair for a good fall business."

Death of a Horse from Fright.

The Wheeling Ircss states that on Saturday, as the battery was firing a salute in honor of Col. B. F. Larned, deceased, one of the horses became so frightened at the report of the cannon that he dropped dead after passing one square from the place of firing. No other cause could be assigned for the sudden death than fear.
