SELECT TALE. THE OLD SOLDIER'S STORY.

BY ALEX-NOTE DUBAS. Concluded from Yesterday.] I took the nacket with a bow. 'I have seen'—thou understandest? have seen

"Yes, sire."
"Go!" And he opened the door himself, the door by which I had entered; my conductor was awaiting me. The emperor closed the door after me, repeating, "Dust, dust, I stood all amazement on the threshold.
''Come!'' my conductor said to me.

We left the palace by a different route. A sledge was awaiting us in the court yard; the gate of the palace looking on the Fontanka Bridge was opened, and the sledge started at a hand gallop. We cross ed the place, and reached the banks of the Neva. Our horses rushed upon the lice, and, guided by the belfry of Peter and Paul, we traversed the river. The night was gloomy, the wind howled, in a mournful and terrible manner. I had scarcely noticed we had reached dry ground ere we arrived at the gates of the fortress; a soldier asked the password, and let us in. The sledge stopped at the governor's door. The word given once again, we entered his house as we had done the fortress.

"By the emperor's order." This command soon aroused the governor, who came to us trying to hide his alarm be-neath with a man like Paul there is no security for the jailers nor the captives, for the hangmen nor for the victims.

My guide made the governor a sign that he had to do with me, then he restormed garded me with more attention; still, he hesitated before addressing me—my youth doubtless surprised him. To put him at ease I gave him without a word the emperor's order. He took it to the light, exam ined the seal, and our recognizing it as the signal of a secret order, he bowed, made an impractible sign of the cross, and opened it. He read the order, and turn-You are to see?" "I am to see."

"What are you to see?"

"You know."
"But do you know?" He remained for a few thought.
"You came in a sledge!

"How many persons will it convenient-Three. 'Does this gentleman go with us?" he sked, pointing to my conductor.

I hesitated, not knowing exactly what to us, and walked on till we found ourselves opposite the prison. The governor pointed to the door. The jailer opened it, went in and lighted a lantern. We followed.— We went down ten steps and passed a row of dungeons, then down ten more, but did Pittsburgh, Sept. 21, '62.)

N OBEDIENCE TO ORDERS FROM
Adju ant Gene al Russell, all military organization not of stop. At last we descended five more, and at length stopped. The doors were numbered: he stopped at the one marked No. 11. He gave a silent signal: it seemed, in this abode of the dead, as if he had lost his power of speech. There was at this time a frost of at least twenty degrees outside. At the depth where we found ourselves it was mingled with a damp which penetrated to the bone; my marrow was frozen, yet I wiped the persspiration from my brow. The door opened we went down six slippery steps, and found ourselves in a dungeon of six square feet. I saw a human form moving in it.

NEW MEDICAL DISCOVERY. The governor remained on the last step, GONORRHEA, G. RET, URETHAL charges, Seminal Weakness, Nightly Emis-sions, Incontiornee, Genital Irrita-bility, Gr. vel. Where were we going? I knew not.— What were we going to do? I was equally ignorant. I had only to see; the action self did not concern me. We started. Through my position the old man's legs were between mine; I felt them tremble The governor was wrapped in his furs; was buttoned up in my military coat and yet the cold reached us. The prisoner was almost naked, but the governor had offered him no clothing. For a moment thought of taking off my coat and offering it to him; the governor guessed my in-

'It is not worth while," he ssid. Soon we reached the Neva again, and our sledge took the direction of Cronstadt. The wind came off the Baltic, and blew furiously, the sleet cut our faces; though our eyes had grown accustomed to the At last we stopped in the midst of a furious storm. We must have been about

"Cut a hole in the ice," the governor I could not resist a cry of terror. I began to comprehend. "Ah!" the old man muttered, with an accent resembling the laugh of a skeleton, "then the empress does remember me? I fancied she had forgotten me."

Of what empress was he talking about?
Three had passed away in succession, Anne, Elizabeth and Catherine. It was evident he believed he was still living my29tf back, the ice was broken—the water was rapidly rising.

"Come down," the governor said to the old man. The order was useless, for he had already done so. Kneeling on the ice, he was praying fervently.

The governor gave an order in a low tone to the soldiers; then came back to my side, for I had not left the sledge.— J. & M. M'STEEN, Brass Founders n a few minutes the prisoner rose. "I am ready." he said. The four soldiers rushed upon him.

I turned my eyes away; but though did not see, I heard.
I heard the noise of a body hurled into the abyss. In spite of myself I turned round. The old man had disappeared.— I forgot that I had no right to give orders, but shouted to the driver, "Away, away,
