HOOFLAND'S GERMAN BITTERS. From J. Newton Brown, D. D., Editor of the En-Although not disposed to favor or recommend Patent Medicines in general, through distrust of their ingredients and effects; I yet know of no sufficient reason why a man may not testify to the benefit he believes himself to have received from any simple preparation in the hope that he may thus contribute to the benefit of others.

I do this the more readily in regard to Hoofland's German Bitters, prepared by Dr. C. M. Jackson, of this city, because I was prejudiced against them for many years, under the impression, that they were chiefly an alcoholic mixture, I am indebted to my friend Robert Shoemaker, Reg., for the removal of this prejudice by proper cets, and for encouragement to try them, when suffering from great and long continued debility. The use of three bottles of these Bitters, at the beginning of the present year, was followed by sydient relief, and restoration to a degree of lodily and mental vigor which I had not left for ix months before, and had almost depaired of realings. I therefore thank God and my friend for livecting me to the juse of them.

Dr. JACKSON -DEAR S.E. -I have been fruently requested to connect my name with commendations of different kinds of medicine, but exarding the ractics as out of my appropriate phere, I have a fall cases declined; but with a slear proof in various instances, and particularly in my own family, of the usefulness of Dr. Hoof-land's German Bitters. I depart from my usual course, to express my full conviction that for general debility of the asystem, and especially Liver Complaint it is a safe and valuable preparation. In some cases it may fail, but usually I doubt not it will be very beneficial to those who suffer from the above causes. Yours very reopectfully.

Dr. C. M. JACKSON Sir:—It gave me pleasure, woyears ago, to give you a certificate, testifying nat the German Bitters had done for me I am ow perfectly cured of all those diseases, your redicine professes to cure, vis. Dyspepsia, Chronleand Nervous debility, disease of the Kidneys, to. The powerful influence it exerts upon. Neryous prostration is surprising. I have been consulted frequently in reference to your Bitters, and without hesitation, have recommended it for the above complaints, and in every instance it has effectually cured. Your medicine has a great repnisation in Germantown, and is sold in every Drug Store, and in most of the Groccay stores hers. If any one should question what I say, let them come to Germantown, and I will prove to cheir satisfaction, that, the Bitters have cured in this gionity more than itwenty cases of the above dreases.

NARRIED: BY CONNAND [Continued from Yesterday.] "To the Grenadiers! Ah, well! What does it matter? You are joking, comman "Joking-with this letter! Stay, there is no longer any mystery; you may read it yourself." Catherine took the letter from Major

"The king! It was the king! Good heavens!"

"The king himself. Are you not delighted to have made his acquaintance?"

Catherine was stupified, and exclaimed —"To marry me!! I will never give consent."

"Your consent," replied Keller, showing her the letter; which that there is no mention here."

Saying these words he rang the bell, and said to the soldier who answered his summons:

an hour '
"In half an hour!" cried Catherine.—
"It is impossible! It is wilful ir jury."
"When I say half an hour, perhaps a quarter will suffice. The time to measure eight or ten grenadiers; and to choose one among them of the right proportions," said he, measuring Catherine with his eye. "About five feet, four or six inches. A fair complexion to form a contrast, Mad emoiselle," continued he with a military

Presently Keller returned, holding Presently Netter returned, nothing a paper in his hand.

"I have found your man," said he, "and you are to sign this promise of marriage with him for the chaplain, as the law requires the consent of both parties."

Cotherine, recovering from her dejections. quires the consent of both parties."

Catherine, recovering from her dejection, exclaimed: "Consent! Ah! this paper has to be signed? You must have my name? Well, major, I will allow myself to be cut into pieces rather than sign that paper!" added she, standing in an attitude of determination before the surprised Maf determination before the surprised Maor. "Really you would make an admirable grenadier." said he. He then read aloud the promise of mariage, as follows: "We the undersigned (you will add your name,) and sergeant Hosten, of the third regiment of the grenadiers..." Hearing the name of Hosten, Catherine

"Can it be Ludwig?" thought she: "then indeed, fortune has favored me."

The Majdr went ou reading—"Promise to take each other as man and wife.—
Marienburg. 15th March, 1780. There, Mademoiselle, you see it is not long. Will you sign this paper? Yes, or no? No, did you say? Then we must take strong measures," said he, as he was about to pull the bell.

Catherine stopped him, saying, "I beg to Walnut of Workest rehire do pts and % pints." stand. The same of the intended, if you please. Sergeam Hosten, replied Major Kel-

"Is it possible?" And why nor. Make yourself easy. He is a brave handsome fellow, five feet five inches and a half at least." Catnerine could hardly believe her ears, so providential did this circumstance appear to her; the distress which she had ex. perienced but a few minutes ago was sud denly changed at the mention of this name, into erstacies of joy.

"Well, do you still refuse?" said the ma-"I consent major, and am ready to sign.
ong live King Frederick!"
"All in good time, I was sure of it—I When he had left the room, Keller called Sergeant Hosten.

Albert (for this was the young sergeant's name), now entered, making a military salute. On perceiving the young girl, he exclaimed—"Catherine, the sister of my betrothed! What an unexpected pleasure!" Expected pleasure! "Albert, my sister's lover! Oh. cruel mistake!"eja dulated Catherine, her dream of happiness once more vanishing in the "Commander, what are your orders" "Commander, what are your orders"

"They are these, Sergeant Hosten. In the king's name you are appointed to marry this young girt."

At the words, "in the king's name," Albert shouldered his arms; but on hearing the words which followed, he suddenly let his gun fall, and stood as if petrified. "Do you understand?"

Yes, commander," said Albert mechanically.

"A quarter of an hour is given you to become acquainted with each other, and sign the promise of marriage." "Pardon—excuse, major," cried Albert.
"Doubtlers his majesty's commands—it is my duty to—but you understand that in a quarter of an hour—" "Are you speaking at random?" inquir ed the major.

"No, major, no! But the surprise, the arrangement. Scarcely arrived at the garrison, and to be all at once married! It is like a cannon which goes off before the match has taken light. After all, what claim have I to imademoisalle's hand?" laim have I to mademoiselle's hand?"

"Five feet and nearly six inches. She is contented with that. Look at her, and take example by her.' "What does mademoiselle consent to "She asks nothing better." 'That is to say, major,' put in Catherine,

I was mistaken, commander, replied she. 'I'though it was Ludwig Hosten, my betrothed, and it is Albert Hosten, his brother, who is my sister's afflanced hus-band. You deceived me by telling me he was in the fifth company.
