

THE NEWSPAPER PRESS.

The day has passed when the newspaper may be esteemed a luxury. It is a necessity of our age.

The tone of the public newspapers of a city depends upon the character of its citizens. If they are public-spirited, liberal and energetic, the newspapers which represent them will be enterprising, spirited and useful.

Our merchants and manufacturers, the latter especially, seem to think that advertising is a matter of no consequence to them. They can stand to be neglected and need not care for publicity.

We are now in the midst of a struggle, the cost of which affects the pecuniary interests of all classes of people. Every thing which we eat, drink, wear, or use, has appreciated in price.

The publishers of this city have felt the necessity which the times have brought upon all, but in a greater degree than most branches of industry.

News from the West Indies. Action of Admiral Wilkes' United States Squadron on Bermuda. Advice from Bermuda to the 31st of October have been received at New York.

The Bermuda correspondent of the Royal Mail has to say: Here is what he has to say. By what right the American cruisers so unceremoniously bring to aid board British vessels without this boundary, unless within prescribed distance from their coast, I am at a loss to determine.
