The Rule on the County Controller Argued.

Judges Grier and McCandless, sitting in day morning heard an argument upon the rule on the County Controller to show cause why an attachment should not issue against him for contempt in seeking to obstruct the payment of judgments entered George P. Hamilton, Esq., who argued for the rule, held that the Controller had been guilty of contempt in countersigning warrants issued for other purposes than the payment of the judgments, thus defeating the process of the Court, as otherwise the county taxes would have been paid into the Treasury in cash, thus fur-dishing the means to pay the judgments. As his act had diverted the money from the payment of these debts, the attachment for contempt ought to be issued. Mr. S. H. Geyer argued that Mr. Lambert had merely discharged the duties re quired of him by law, simply certifying the claims, as presented, to the Commissioners as correct, and then countersigning their warrants when issued. These acts exhausted all his powers- he had done all the Court directed him to do and was not, therefore, liable for contempt. Judge McCandless held that until a warcant is drawn there is no appropriation, but when drawn the amount it called to is appropriated to the object named. mère estimate of county expenditures

Carnahan, Esq., followed Mr. Geyer, for the respondent, and proposed to read a sworn statement from the Comissioners and Controller, which the Cou efused to hear, as their answers, which they hal ample time to prepare, were already on file.
Mr. Carnahan said it would be but sim-justice to admit the paper, as it was offered to purge the parties of contempt. On the Court refusing to hear the state ment he declined proceeding with his ar ament. Mr. Hamilton closed the argument for the
