

The Union as it was: The Constitution as it is!

THURSDAY MORNING, NOV. 20.

FREMONT LOOMING UP.

Is Execution done on Cadwor?

It was said at the time of the occurrence that the removal of McClellan was but a prelude to the appointment of Fremont to his place. The Pathfinder, last week, left his measure for a suit of military habiliments, which, for grandeur, will cause all the officers in the country to take backseats. Gold lace and French plumes have advanced in value since the report of Fremont's probable elevation to the command of the Eastern Army.

TER ST. LAWRENCE. It always gives us pleasure to find any one who appreciates the comforts of the admirably appointed St. Lawrence Hotel, kept by a gentleman well known in this city, Mr. W. A. Campbell. We therefore publish the following, from a Pittsburgher now in the East:

THE PEACE PROPOSITIONS. Union Democrats in New York are anxious to bring about a peace of indignation; for they want no peace as long as there is a greenback to be made by government contract or a slave in the confederacy. Notwithstanding all this indignation, the Tribune itself, on the 24th of September, six days after the appearance of the President's emancipation proclamation, contained the following, which is just as applicable to the present as it was to the past:

FROM THE UPPER POTOMAC. Rebel Movements in the Valley—Jackson there with Forty Thousand Men. Correspondence of the Baltimore American, Haverock's Ferry, Sunday P. M.

FROM THE UPPER POTOMAC.

Rebel Movements in the Valley—Jackson there with Forty Thousand Men.

The information I have sent you within the last few days in relation to the movements of Stonewall Jackson, in the Shenandoah Valley, is fully confirmed. His army corps, with that of General A. P. Hill, is undoubtedly between Winchester and Hancock, but whether with the intention of making an advance into Maryland at that point or of going further West and attacking Cumberland, is a question on which opinions differ. The general conclusion looks toward Cumberland as the point to which Jackson will first pay attention, and the rebels themselves declare their purpose to go West.

THE REBEL MOVEMENTS. From our sources it appears to be the most reliable statement that the rebel army of Jackson never left the Shenandoah Valley. As our army passed down the east side of the mountain, the rebels moved along on the east side of the mountain, skirting along the Gaps with our advance, but never in reality profiting any benefit from the position. The rebels passed beyond Manassas Gap, and his intention not to enter the Shenandoah Valley, but to move on the North-western side, retracing his steps. His corps passed through Winchester on Monday last, and was followed on Tuesday by Gen. Lee.
